P R O C E E D I N G S

THE COURT: Please be seated. Mr. Miller, good afternoon.

MR. MILLER: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Harvey Miller on behalf of the debtors, Your Honor. I thought, Your Honor, that I might give a slight succinct update of where we stand today, if I might.

THE COURT: Great.

MR. MILLER: I'm relieved to report, Your Honor, that under the leadership of Mr. Marsal and the Alvarez & Marsal team, the administration of the Chapter 11 cases has achieved a level of stabilization. Just to recap the major events up through October 16, we consummated the sale with Barclays Capital Inc. We've negotiated the sale of the investment management division, which is subject to an auction and court approval. That auction is supposed to be on December 1st of this year. We've consummated the sales of Eagle Energy Partners for a recovery of about 230 million dollars and R3 Capital Partners with a gross recovery of about 500 million dollars. And, in addition, there have been negotiations and other sales, including the sale of the G4. There are other claims which are on the market right now.

The financial condition of the debtors, Your Honor, and their liquidity has improved significantly. From September 15 through November 7, 2008, the aggregate cash balances have

1 increased by over 2.2 billion dollars. So the debtors and 2 nondebtors are administering an aggregate of over 4.8 billion 3 dollars in cash after refunding an inadvertent deposit made of 4 almost 400 million dollars that was property that belong to 5 LBIE, Lehman Brothers Europe.

6 Credited to the accounts of the Chapter 11 debtors is 7 approximately 3.5 billion dollars. The balance of the 4.8
8 billion dollars represents monies held in Neuberger Berman and 9 other nondebtor entities, but it's all subject to the 10 oversights, Your Honor, of LBHI and its team.

11 The debtors have successfully instituted procedures 12 to redirect remittances to new bank accounts. As a result of 13 that process, it has obtained, or is in the process of 14 obtaining, no setoff letters from other institutions so that it 15 can open additional deposit accounts.

16 In terms of corporate governance, Your Honor, there 17 was an extended meeting of the board of directors last Friday, 18 November 14. At that meeting, the board passed a resolution 19 that, effective of the close of business on December 31, 2008, 20 Mr. Marsal will succeed Richard Fuld as the chief executive 21 officer of Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc.

22 As to the administration of the Chapter 11 cases, as 23 Your Honor will recall when Mr. Marsal was here, the number one 24 priority was the collection and preservation of data. And it 25 was the problem of the disintegration of the IT systems as a

1 result of the insolvency proceedings in the U.K. and in Asia,
2 and also including the sale to Barclays Capital Inc. It 3 resulted in limited access to the data and information that was 4 necessary to the administration. So that became the first 5 priority. And I'm happy to report, Your Honor, the situation 6 is improving, and over half of the data has been captured to 7 date. The number of crises is diminishing, and there are fewer 8 emergencies as to deteriorating assets. There is complete 9 control over the cash disbursements system and visibility and 10 oversight over nondebtor cash and business activities. A 11 weekly liquidity report is provided to FTI as the financial 12 advisor to the statutory creditors' committee. Capability is 13 being achieved to conduct forensic review and reconstruction of 14 the financial records to bridge the August 31 balance sheet to 15 September 15, 2008. And it's anticipated that the financial 16 statements as of September 15, 2008 will be produced within the 17 very near future. The problem has been to overcome 18 unreconciled trades, and they're working on that very 19 intensely, Your Honor. Efforts are underway to track all 20 activity between September 15 and the respective filing dates 21 of the seventeen subsidiaries that also filed in October. The 22 debtors are also complying with the requirements under the 23 securities laws and have filed a number of 8-Ks since the 24 commencement of the case.

25 As to wind-down issues, Your Honor, after the

1 consummation of the Barclays transaction, the administration of 2 the Chapter 11 cases started out with approximately 170 formal 3 Lehman employees. Almost 10,000 employees, Your Honor, went 4 over to Barclays, and we actually were counting that at 9,100, 5 but it was much closer to 10,000 for at least a period of 6 ninety days.

7 As a result of that workforce being so limited, 8 Alvarez & Marsal had to dedicate a large number of people to 9 the administration of the Chapter 11 cases. As of November 10, 10 2008, as a result of active recruiting to fill in holes as to 11 different aspects of the administration and as to some level of 12 attrition to the original 170 Lehman legacy employees, the 13 headcount was 264 persons. The target for the year-end is to 14 have a workforce of approximately 620 employees, the largest 15 bulk of whom will be dedicated to working on derivatives
16 transactions. In addition to those employees, Your Honor, 17 there are employees of Barclays Capital who have been dedicated 18 to assist in the administration of the Chapter 11 cases
19 pursuant to the transition services agreement with Barclays 20 Capital as well as the Alvarez & Marsal teams and others.

21 In that connection, Your Honor, the transition 22 services agreement with Barclays, as Your Honor may recall when 23 Mr. Marsal was here, he alluded to the fact that it was a 24 somewhat bumpy road. It was complicated by what happened to 25 the disintegration of these systems, and also Barclays was, in

1 effect, orienting itself to what it had purchased. Since the 2 beginning of November, there has been marked improvement in 3 performance. Derivative inventories are substantially marked, 4 loan book has been substantially marked, data capture is 5 working well and financial and accounting issues are a work in 6 process. Barclays has ring fenced, Your Honor, approximately 7 272 employees to support the Chapter 11 administration.

8 On today's calendar, Your Honor, we will be hearing 9 about a retention recruitment program to retain current 10 employees and hire former Lehman employees and other 11 individuals with the requisite skill sets. This was created, 12 Your Honor, in cooperation with the creditors' committee and 13 has been adopted subject to approval by the Court. Employees
14 are being recruited to that program -- I'm sorry. Employees 15 that are recruited, Your Honor, will be broken into asset teams 16 for: 1) derivatives, 2) real estate, 3) private equity, 4) 17 bank book assets, 5) finance, 6) legal and 7) IT services. The 18 objective is to create a workforce that is capable of 19 administering the cases and allowing for the contraction in the 20 number of Alvarez & Marsal people dedicated to Lehman. The 21 result will reduce the cost of administration.

22 The debtors have also been negotiating, Your Honor, 23 additional transition service agreements with other entities, 24 and they have been negotiated or are in process. One to be 25 heard today, Your Honor, is with LBIE. A cross-border

1 insolvency protocol is being negotiated for Lehman Brothers
2 Holdings Inc., Lehman Brothers Inc. and Lehman Brothers Europe
3 which provides for coordination and cooperation. A protocol 4 was entered into with LBHI and Nomura Holdings Asia Pacific on 5 September 29, 2008 relative to the sale of Lehman Asia. There
6 is an administrator access letter between LBHI and Nomura 7 Holdings, Inc. Asia Pacific that's dated September 29, 2008.

8 On October 6, another protocol was entered into with 9 LBHI and Nomura Holdings India in connection with the sale of 10 Lehman India. There is a TSA with LBHI/Eagle Energy Partners 11 relative to the sale of Eagle Energy, and there are additional 12 five more TSAs that are in the process of being negotiated with 13 other entities to facilitate the administration of the Chapter 14 11 cases.

15 As to international proceedings, Your Honor, there 16 are at least seventy-six different foreign proceedings covering 17 over fifteen countries. The debtors are in regular contact 18 with the administrators or receivers in those foreign 19 proceedings. As indicated, TSAs or protocols for coordination, 20 flow and access to information are being negotiated or have 21 been negotiated. This is the list, Your Honor, I'm holding in 22 my hand of the foreign proceedings, which just cover the entire 23 globe. If Your Honor would like a copy, I'd be glad to hand --

24 THE COURT: I would like a copy.

25 MR. MILLER: May I approach? I will also bring up,

1 Your Honor, the latest organizational chart, which changes from 2 day to day almost.

3 THE COURT: Fine. Well, I'm happy to look at today's 4 version. Okay, thank you.

5 MR. MILLER: In most of those cases, Your Honor, 6 Lehman Brothers Holdings will be the largest single creditor in 7 those proceedings. As of yesterday, Lehman Brothers Holdings 8 Inc. was appointed to the official creditors' committee in the 9 Lehman Brothers Europe case pending in the United Kingdom. It 10 is a committee consisting of five members and is scheduled to 11 have its first meeting in London on December 3, 2008. Lehman 12 Brothers Holdings Inc. was represented at the meeting of 13 general creditors that was convened in London by the joint 14 administrators, LBIE, and it was held on November 14, 2008.

15 In connection with transparency and access to 16 information, Your Honor --

17 THE COURT: Why don't we stop there for one second?

18 MR. MILLER: Sure.

19 THE COURT: There seems to be a feeding frenzy for 20 documents behind you, and I think we'll just wait till the 21 scene calms down a little bit because I find it very 22 distracting.

23 Why don't we resume with transparency?

24 MR. MILLER: In connection with the creditors' 25 committee, Your Honor, there are daily calls with the

1 creditors' committee's professionals to review the status of 2 the Chapter 11 cases. There is an in-person meeting with the 3 creditors' committee at least once a month. The last meeting
4 was held on November 13, 2008, a week ago. That meeting 5 consumed almost four hours with an extended presentation on the 6 part of the debtors.

7 There are -- in connection with the SIPA trustee, 8 Your Honor, Mr. Giddens, there are weekly status updates and 9 conference calls with the trustee and his professionals. The 10 intention is to work more closely and in a more integrated 11 fashion with the SIPA trustee and his staff.

12 As for the U.S. Trustee's Office, Your Honor, there 13 is continuing discussion with the U.S. Trustee's Office as to 14 the administration of the estate.

15 And as to individual creditors, Your Honor, I have to 16 say that Mr. Marsal and the Alvarez & Marsal team have been 17 very generous in devoting substantial time to numerous meetings 18 with individual creditors and groups of creditors seeking 19 information as to particular accounts.

20 In addition, Your Honor, there are a large number of 21 Web sites which are devoted to the Lehman case. The primary 22 Web site is www.lehman.com, which provides direct access to 23 seven Web sites. Then there is www.lehmanbrothersestate.com, 24 which provides direct contact information for approximately one
25 hundred people at Lehman, Alvarez & Marsal and Weil, Gotshal &

1 Manges. This list is broken down by work streams and 2 geographic regions. The third Web site, Your Honor, is 3 www.lehman.com/press, which contains press releases described 4 in the acquisition of IMD -- or potential acquisition, I should 5 say, by Bain Capital and Hellman & Friedman. The fourth is 6 www.nb.com, which has information relating to Neuberger Berman
7 and links to the most recent press releases. The fifth Web 8 site, Your Honor, is www.pwc.co.uk, which is the Web site of 9 PricewaterhouseCoopers and the joint administrators, which 10 provides information relating to the Lehman companies in the 11 U.K. and European administration. The sixth is www.nomura.com, 12 which has information relating to the acquisition of Lehman's 13 Asia Pacific businesses. And the seventh, Your Honor, is 14 www.barcap.com, which has information relating to Barclays 15 investment banking and capital markets business. And the 16 eighth is www.barclayswealthamericas.com, which has information 17 relating to Barclays' various investment services to 18 individuals and businesses.

19 The debtors' claim agent also maintains a separate 20 Web site at <http://chapter11.epicsystems.com/lehman>. This Web 21 site effectively and efficiently allows the debtors to 22 distribute information that includes: 1) full access to the 23 docket at no charge, and is updated on a real-time basis, 2) a 24 list of all Chapter 11 debtors, their case numbers and the 25 filing date, 3) information with respect to asset sales,

1 including Barclays, IMD, CES Aviation and other entities, 4) 2 information relating to the trading restrictions provided by 3 the NOL order, 5) blank proofs of claim and mailing information 4 for filing and 6) portions of information with presentations 5 that were made to the creditors' committee.

6 The creditors' committee also maintains a Web site, 7 Your Honor, at www.lehmancreditors.com, which contains 8 information relating to: 1) significant events in the case, 2) 9 a calendar of events, 3) monthly reports, 4) committee-filed 10 pleadings and 5) committee professional contact information.

11 In connection with data preservation, Your Honor, as 12 I said, it has improved at least a hundred percent. The 13 debtors made an inventory of 400 thousand backup tapes. They 14 have identified file servers containing two petabytes of 15 information and ninety-three key applications. It is expected 16 that the data preservation should be completed by year-end.

17 In terms of projected administration, Your Honor, the 18 next major phase in the administration of these cases will be 19 the forensic area of locating and recovering assets for the 20 benefit of the respective estates. We have previously reported 21 that there were approximately 1,450,000 derivative transactions 22 that encompassed 8,000 counterparties. I'm afraid that did not 23 tell the full story. In addition to those derivative 24 transactions, there are intercompany derivative transactions
25 approximating one million in number that have to be unwound,

1 analyzed and valued. The biggest area in this administration
2 right now, Your Honor, is the derivatives. The biggest 3 recruiting program is to fill in that team. All the other 4 teams are now complete. And what Mr. Marsal is looking for are 5 people who have experience in the derivative area that used to 6 work for Lehman.

7 THE COURT: I just have a question about your 8 reference to the term "intercompany derivative transactions".

9 MR. MILLER: Yes, sir.

10 THE COURT: Are these all internal to LBHI and its 11 affiliates or does it extend to the various proceedings that 12 are pending around the world?

13 MR. MILLER: It may relate to other proceedings
14 around the world, Your Honor.

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MR. MILLER: This is like peeling an artichoke, if 17 that's the right expression, to find out where these all are.
18 There are different -- in 4,000 companies, there are many 19 transactions, Your Honor.

20 THE COURT: I think it's usually an onion, but we'll 21 take artichoke today.

22 MR. MILLER: Okay. I don't eat artichokes anyway.
23 There are continuing efforts, Your Honor, to determine the 24 value of different investment accounts and transactions as well 25 as the relationships with financial institutions, trading

1 partners and exchanges. That's peeling the onion, Your Honor.

2 Then, Your Honor, the other item is the examiner 3 motions which are not on the calendar for today, but I would 4 say to Your Honor that the issue of an examiner was discussed
5 long before the motion that was made by The Walt Disney
6 Company. It was anticipated at some point in these proceedings 7 there would be a motion or even an affirmative motion by the 8 debtors with the support of the creditors' committee for the 9 appointment of an examiner, and that was under discussion. It 10 was mutually agreed among the people who were discussing, 11 obviously, that it made no sense to have an examiner until you 12 stabilized the system, until you were able to close the books 13 and create a factual basis and a foundation for which the 14 examiner could proceed to do whatever investigation was 15 authorized. And those discussions were underway when the 16 motion was filed by The Walt Disney Company.

17 Since November 5, Your Honor, or whenever that motion 18 was filed, we have been in discussions with various parties, 19 including Disney, as to the scope of an order that Your Honor 20 might enter in connection with the appointment of the examiner.
21 And as one of the joinders to the Disney motion, I think, as 22 the Harbinger Funds had suggested in its joinder, that the 23 appointment should be deferred until the end of the year.
24 We've worked on that principle and with Mr. Bienenstock in 25 developing what might be the scope of the investigation.

1           In that perspective, Your Honor, the debtors have 2           agreed with Disney, just the debtors, that it is in the best 3           interests of the administration of the cases that there be a 4           proposal of a consensual order for the appointment of an 5           examiner containing a proposed scope of the examiner's duties.
6           It's the intention of the parties, Your Honor, to present such 7           an order to the Court at the omnibus hearing schedule for 8           January 14, 2009.

9           THE COURT: Let me break in and just make this 10          observation and comment --

11          MR. MILLER: Yes, sir.

12          THE COURT: -- in connection with this aspect of the 13          report. As you might imagine, in addition to the thinking that 14          has been going on that I am only now hearing about, I've also 15          done some thinking about the subject of the examiner motion, 16          which is not to be heard until January of next year. And while 17          I will certainly be receptive to anything that may be proposed 18          in a consensual order, it needs to be clearly understood that 19          the discretion is solely mine and that you're not going to be 20          usurping it by attempting to document something and ask me to 21          rubber stamp, because that's not going to happen.

22          MR. MILLER: There was never any intention of that.
23          That would be the last thing, Your Honor --

24          THE COURT: I want it to be really clear, however, 25          since we're not dealing with any argument today in connection

1 with the examiner, that the parties are not going to craft this 2 for my approval. I am going to decide the scope. It may be 3 that there'll be complete overlap, but there may not be.

4 MR. MILLER: This would only be a recommendation,
5 Your Honor --

6 THE COURT: Understood.

7 MR. MILLER: -- nothing more than that.

8 THE COURT: Okay. I'm just -- I'm not fencing you 9 there as much as telling you that the power to appoint is mine, 10 as is the power to determine scope.

11 MR. MILLER: Absolutely, Your Honor, but all that we 12 have done, Your Honor, is try to flesh out some things that 13 Your Honor might consider and also take input, for example, 14 from the Office of the U.S. Trustee, which had various 15 suggestions. And we also, Your Honor, to be candid, were 16 contacted by the U.S. attorneys to make sure that they have 17 their input into the order.

18 THE COURT: I recognize that --

19 MR. MILLER: And nothing, Your Honor, would be 20 binding on you.

21 THE COURT: I understand, and I would certainly 22 appreciate seeing what you have to propose.

23 MR. MILLER: Thank you, Your Honor. With that, Your 24 Honor, I would go to the agenda for today.

25 THE COURT: That's fine. But just before we do that,

1       because this is the status report portion of the agenda, I'm 2       going to simply ask if there's anything that the creditors' 3       committee wishes to add. It may be that the answer to that is 4       no, and that's a perfectly good answer.

5               MR. DUNNE: It is no at this time. Mr. Miller was 6       very precise as to his description of the fact that the 7       creditors' committee has not weighed in yet on the examiner
8       motion. We expect to do that, with respect to the scope, 9       between now and January. And either it will be on the sides of 10      a recommendation to you or making our recommendations outside 11      the four corners of the document that Mr. Miller's working out 12      with Mr. Bienenstock. But he was precise on that.

13             THE COURT: Fine.

14             MR. MILLER: We hope, Your Honor, it will be a joint 15      recommendation, for whatever it's worth.

16             THE COURT: I hope so too.

17             MR. MILLER: In turning to the calendar for today, 18      Your Honor, and starting with the uncontested matters, item 1 19      is the application of the debtors to engage Weil, Gotshal & 20      Manges under a general engagement. There are no objections, 21      Your Honor, and it's all, of course, subject to further 22      disclosures and reservation of rights on the part of the Office 23      of the U.S. Trustee.

24             THE COURT: That's granted on a final basis.

25             MR. MILLER: The second matter on the calendar, Your

1 Honor, is the debtors' application to employ Curtis, Mallet-2 Prevost, Colt & Mosle and conflicts counsel, nunc pro tunc to 3 September 26, 2008. Similar, Your Honor, without prejudice to 4 further disclosure and the rights of the Office of the United 5 States Trustee, there are no objections, Your Honor.

6 THE COURT: Motion granted.

7 MR. MILLER: The next application, Your Honor, is the 8 debtors' application to employ Simpson Thacher & Bartlett as 9 special counsel pursuant to Section 327(e) of the Bankruptcy
10 Code, nunc pro tunc to the commencement date. In connection 11 with this application, Your Honor, Simpson Thacher & Bartlett 12 was very active in the Barclays sale and very active during 13 that period up to the beginning of October. Essentially, I 14 would point out, Your Honor, a lot of the services have been 15 completed. There is really one active matter that's 16 representing LBA Y.K. in a nondebtor indirect subsidiary of 17 LBHI in litigation pending in the United States and Japan.
18 That's the primary ongoing services, Your Honor. So subject to 19 the same statement of our reservation of rights, I don't think 20 there are any objections.

21 THE COURT: Application granted.

22 MR. MILLER: Thank you, Your Honor. The next three 23 matters, Your Honor, on behalf of the creditors' committee, 24 Mr. Dunne?

25 MR. DUNNE: Thank you. For the record, Dennis Dunne

1 from Milbank, Tweed, Hadley & McCloy, on behalf of the official 2 committee of unsecured creditors. Agenda item number 5 is the 3 creditors' committee's application to retain and employ
4 Milbank, Tweed, Hadley & McCloy LLP as counsel to the committee
5 effective as of September 17, 2008. We've received no
6 objections to that, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: That application is granted.

8 MR. DUNNE: Agenda item number 6, Your Honor, is the 9 creditors' committee's application to retain and employ Quinn
10 Emanuel as conflicts counsel to the committee, again, effective 11 as of September 17, 2008. We have received no responses.

12 THE COURT: Also granted.

13 MR. DUNNE: Agenda item number 7, Your Honor, is the 14 creditors' committee's application to employ and retain FTI
15 Consulting Inc. as financial advisor effective as of September 16 17, 2008. We've received no responses.

17 THE COURT: That one is granted as well.

18 MR. DUNNE: And with respect to the Houlihan Lokey
19 application, we've adjourned that to the December 16th hearing 20 date, Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: Which leads me to ask if there is a 22 pending concern of the U.S. Trustee's Office or any other 23 party-in-interest in connection with that application.

24 MR. VELEZ-RIVERA: Andrew Velez-Rivera for the United 25 States Trustee. Your Honor, we are in ongoing discussions with

1 Houlihan and with Houlihan's counsel with regard to several 2 features of its application.

3 THE COURT: Fine.

4 MR. DUNNE: Thank you, Your Honor.

5 THE COURT: Thank you.

6 MR. MILLER: I might add, Your Honor, in connection 7 with that, there will be an application on the part of the 8 debtors to hire Lazard Freres -- Lazard Ltd. That has similar 9 issues as the Houlihan application, and that has also been put 10 on to the same date. I think it's December 16th, if I'm 11 correct. So we're working on resolving those issues, Your 12 Honor.

13 THE COURT: As long as we're talking about hearings 14 in December, I just wanted to ask a question that ties into 15 your reference to the Neuberger Berman transaction. There is 16 currently scheduled a December 22 hearing date in connection 17 with approval of that sale.

18 MR. MILLER: Yes, sir.

19 THE COURT: Just given the nature of that week and 20 its closeness to year-end, I just wanted to confirm that that 21 is in fact a firm date and that we're holding it.

22 MR. MILLER: It is a firm date, Your Honor, but under 23 the terms of the IMD asset purchase agreement, there are 24 various conditions in it which relate to the market. And if 25 the market -- if the S&P goes below a certain amount, there is

1 an opportunity to walk. And we're not quite sure where Bain
2 and Heller & Friedman will be when we get to December 1st.

3 THE COURT: Understood.

4 MR. MILLER: So it's --

5 THE COURT: But assuming that the market-out
6 condition is not exercised, it would be the debtors' 7 anticipation that a hearing will take place as scheduled on 8 that date?

9 MR. MILLER: Yes, sir.

10 THE COURT: Fine. Thank you.

11 MR. MILLER: And that brings the issue, Your Honor, 12 to the debtors' motion, I think it's number 8, Your Honor, to 13 enter into a transition services agreement with Lehman Brothers 14 Europe. The debtors are requesting authority to enter into 15 this TSA. Frankly, Your Honor, I was always of the opinion 16 that this was ordinary course of business, but from the 17 standpoint of the joint administrators in London they prefer 18 that we bring it before the Court and get a court order so that 19 they are convinced that Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc. is bound 20 by the agreement. The objective of the agreement, Your Honor, 21 is the need to unwind the debtors' sizeable book of business in 22 Europe, which consists of more than one million trading 23 positions, amounting to billions of dollars in receivables for 24 the estate. Lehman Europe employees possess the expertise and 25 familiarity necessary to unwind the debtors' trading position.

1 Using other employees to unwind these trades would prove 2 unfeasible and time-consuming and perhaps not particularly 3 satisfactory.

4 So this transition services agreement was negotiated, 5 and it would give us access to critical parts of the data and 6 applications necessary to unwind those transactions. Without 7 access to those systems, the debtors may not be able to execute 8 trades or even evaluate their positions.

9 This was heavily discussed with the creditors'
10 committee, Your Honor. The creditors' committee supports it.
11 There was an objection of -- I think it was an objection, filed 12 by Thomson Reuters. I believe, Your Honor, that that 13 objection --

14 THE COURT: I read it as a reservation of rights with 15 some limited objections associated --

16 MR. MILLER: Limited objections. But as you read on, 17 Your Honor, the word "limited" sort of got dropped near the end 18 of the objection. We've reached an agreement, Your Honor. We 19 will make a representation on the record, and as I understand 20 it, Thomson Reuters will withdraw their limited objection, the 21 Chapter 11 debtors under the LBIE TSA acknowledge that they do 22 not have the right and will not provide access to the Thomson 23 Reuters platforms and systems to nondebtor third parties. The 24 Chapter 11 debtors will work cooperatively with Thomson Reuters 25 to promptly resolve all outstanding issues, including those

1 raised by third-party exchangers and vendors. And in that 2 context, Your Honor, I believe -- I don't know if Thomson
3 Reuters is present.

4 MR. LOBELLO: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Edward 5 Lobello, Blank Rome, for Thomson Reuters. We did file a 6 limited objection. As Your Honor knows, this was filed on a 7 short notice. We had very limited time to react. We did file 8 our objection; then had a conversation with Weil. The 9 representations that Mr. Miller has made are accurate, and we 10 will accept those.

11 THE COURT: And as a result, you withdraw your 12 limited objection?

13 MR. LOBELLO: That's correct, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Fine.

15 MR. MILLER: In addition, Your Honor, as you know,
16 LBIH (sic) has a TSA with Barclays, which I referred to before.
17 Under the terms of that TSA, LBHI may not provide the services 18 it receives from Barclays to third parties, and it may not 19 sublicense under the TSA. To avoid any problems, we represent 20 now that LBHI will not provide the services it receives under 21 the Barclays TSA to LBIE, under the LBIE TSA or otherwise.
22 Barclays and LBIE are negotiating their own TSA. And to the 23 extent appropriate, LBHI will assist in those negotiations.

24 Lindsee, do you want to take --

25 MS. GRANFIELD: Yes. Thank you very much. We were

1     able to discuss this with -- excuse me, Your Honor. Lindsee 2     Granfield, Cleary Gottlieb Steen & Hamilton LLP, on behalf of 3     Barclays Capital. We're able to discuss this cooperatively
4     with Weil Gotshal to obviate the need for filing an objection 5     because we're just a little concerned about some of the 6     language in the LBIE TSA. But with that representation, that's 7     fine. Thank you very much.

8             THE COURT: Okay.

9             MR. MILLER: I might add, Your Honor, in connection
10     with the LBIE proceeding in London at the general meeting of 11     creditors last Friday, it was announced that that proceeding 12     may extend to three or four years before there's any 13     distribution to creditors of any significance. So that, which 14     I think is like a microcosm of LBHI and the related debtors, is 15     sort of a flashpoint for us, although we expect to move faster, 16     Your Honor.

17            THE COURT: I would hope so.

18            MR. MILLER: I hope so. Not before the young lady has 19     her baby but we hope to move quickly. With that, Your Honor, 20     there are no other objections to the LBIE TSA.

21            THE COURT: Is there anyone who wishes to make any 22     comment with respect to the LBIE TSA, particularly counsel for 23     LBIE's administrators, if there's anyone here speaking on their 24     behalf? If there's no comment and a shake of the head from 25     Mr. Flicks, so I'll assume that this is really a weigh-up, and 1 I'll approve it.

2 MR. MILLER: Thank you, Your Honor. Number 9, Your 3 Honor, is the debtors' motion for authorization to implement 4 the retention and recruitment program. Again, Your Honor, this 5 application was, I would say, almost a joint effort on the part 6 of the debtors and the creditors' committee. There were 7 extensive discussions about this program, valuations of the 8 need and so on. The objective here, Your Honor, is to fill 620 9 job slots. The course, Your Honor, is not insignificant. The 10 base salaries would be ninety-six million dollars if all these 11 slots are filled. There's a bonus program that could 12 approximate 110 million dollars. But what the debtors are 13 looking for, Your Honor, are people with the appropriate skill 14 sets to enable a very efficient and economical administration
15 of these estates. And as I said before, the primary recruiting 16 is being done in the derivatives area. It apparently is a 17 field that not many people know about or understand. So 18 getting the people that understand it is a real search project.

19 There have been no objections filed to this, Your 20 Honor. It is in the best interests of the estate. I should 21 point out, Your Honor, that after the motion was filed, there 22 were negotiations with Mr. David Goldfarb. At a point in time, 23 Mr. Goldfarb was in the top five at Lehman Brothers. Prior to 24 the commencement of the Chapter 11 cases, he was not in the top 25 five and had not been in the top five for several months, at

1 least. Mr. Marsal has negotiated with him, and he would come 2 in as an employee, approximately about six months of service, 3 Your Honor. He is -- background in the business, he is very 4 experienced in the principal private equity portfolio, which is 5 approximately thirteen billion dollars. And he has 6 relationships with the persons who are employed both at 7 Barclays and Nomura and would be of tremendous assistance, Your 8 Honor, in the administration of the estate. So I just wanted 9 to note that because that's not in the motion.

10 THE COURT: And what position would he have and what, 11 if any, special compensation arrangements might apply to him
12 given his seniority and importance to the project?

13 MR. MILLER: Your Honor, my recollection is -- I'm 14 looking for my notes. I have them but I don't -- I think his 15 base compensation, Your Honor, is 500,000 dollars on an annual 16 basis. And then he has an opportunity to realize another 17 500,000 dollars based upon achieving the critical points on the 18 incentive program. He's a -- sorry. I'm sorry, Your Honor. I 19 have misstated. It's for the six-month period of 500,000
20 dollars. But the bonus is not guaranteed. He has to perform.

21 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you for that report.

22 MR. MILLER: I don't believe there are any responses
23 or opposition to this, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Is there anyone who wishes to comment in 25 connection with this application? Apparently not. I'm

1 prepared to approve it. And I recall, Mr. Miller, when you 2 first broached the subject of the need to hire people who had 3 the requisite experience and expertise to supplement the 4 debtors' diminished human resources at a time when there was a 5 tremendous need for expertise to deal with the derivatives
6 needing to be unwound. And you mentioned at the time, which I 7 think was one of the early status reports, that you saw this as 8 a potentially controversial subject, or at least one that might 9 attract attention. And I think it's worth noting that this has 10 been presented and vetted to the point that the creditors' 11 committee filed more or less simultaneously with the 12 application and statement of support and at this hearing, which 13 is well-populated, has produced not a single comment in 14 opposition to what you're seeking. And I consider that to be 15 an achievement worth, at least, noting.

16 MR. MILLER: Thank you, Your Honor. I would say, 17 Your Honor, that both the committee and the debtors put in an 18 enormous amount of effort into this to reach an acceptable 19 package that would really benefit the administration of the 20 estates.

21 The next matter, Your Honor, is the motion of ING
22 Real Estate Finance (USA) LLC for relief from the automatic 23 stay. I'll let counsel for --

24 MR. MARINUZZI: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Lorenzo
25 Marinuzzi, Morrison & Foerster, on behalf of ING Real Estate

1 Finance. Pleased to report to the Court that we've an 2 agreement in principle, and execution pages were exchanged this 3 morning among the parties. Under this arrangement, Lehman
4 would resign as agent and appoint ING as the replacement agent,
5 and it would assign its loan position to Swed Bank, or Swede 6 Bank. I've heard it pronounced it both ways. Assuming the 7 client advises me that the papers are in order, we expect to 8 file a formal withdrawal of the motion. The details of these 9 arrangements were shared by the debtors with the committee. No 10 objection was received. And as soon as we get the okay from 11 the client, we'll withdraw the motion formally. Thank you.

12 THE COURT: Does that mean that the consensual 13 arrangements that you're documenting will not be the subject of 14 public disclosure and/or Bankruptcy Court approval because you 15 are simply withdrawing the motion?

16 MR. MARINUZZI: We're simply withdrawing the motion.
17 That's correct, Your Honor.

18 THE COURT: And does the debtor deem this arrangement 19 to be ordinary course?

20 MR. MILLER: Yes, Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: All right.

22 MR. MARINUZZI: Thank you, Your Honor.

23 THE COURT: Thank you.

24 MR. MILLER: Just a point of procedure, Your Honor.
25 Should we carry this until the formal withdrawal notice is 1 filed?

2 THE COURT: It probably makes sense for agenda
3 purposes to just put it over to the December --

4 MR. MILLER: 3rd.

5 THE COURT: -- 3 hearing date. And we'll hold it 6 there just for purposes of good order and assume that it will 7 disappear automatically, assuming that the papers are signed, 8 executed and delivered.

9 MR. MILLER: Thank you, Your Honor.

10 MR. MARINUZZI: Thank you, Your Honor.

11 MR. MILLER: Your Honor, moving to what has been 12 described as contested matters, the first matter is the motion 13 of Sixth Gear to set a date for assumption and rejection of a 14 master repurchase agreement. That matter, Your Honor, has been 15 resolved, and there's an order to be presented.

16 MR. LUCAS: Yeah. I was told that movant's counsel 17 is going to appear and present an order.

18 MR. MILLER: Ah. There is movant's counsel.

19 THE COURT: Are you counsel for Sixth Gear?

20 MR. LEVITAN: I am, Your Honor. Good afternoon, Your 21 Honor. Jeffrey Levitan, Proskauer Rose, counsel for Sixth 22 Gear. We had a very constructive meeting yesterday with 23 representatives of Sixth Gear and the debtors, and we have 24 agreed on the terms of an order pursuant to which the debtors
25 will reject the master repurchase agreement between Sixth Gear

1 and Lehman Commercial Paper and providing for a reservation of 2 rights for all parties.

3 THE COURT: I take it the reservation of rights picks
4 up the references to a counterclaim that I saw in the response 5 papers?

6 MR. LEVITAN: It does, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Fine.

8 MR. LEVITAN: Thank you.

9 MR. MILLER: Thank you, Your Honor. Next matter,
10 Your Honor, number 12, is the motion of Sumitomo Mitsui Banking 11 Corporation for relief from the automatic stay. Your Honor, 12 there is a settlement in process in connection with that 13 matter. Your Honor may recall the matter when the question was 14 is there going to be a valuation dispute. There will be no 15 valuation dispute. We were hopeful, Your Honor, that the 16 stipulation resolution would have been done by the time of the 17 hearing. But there's a little wordsmithing going on, so I
18 would suggest, Your Honor, we just put this over to December 19 3rd. And, in the interim, we will probably file the 20 stipulation.

21 THE COURT: Mr. Hyman, do you wish to be heard?

22 MR. HYMAN: No, Your Honor. I agree with that.
23 Thank you very much. Rick Hyman of Mayer, Brown, Rowe & Maw, 24 on behalf of Sumitomo Mitsui Bank Incorporation. That is a 25 correct description.

1 THE COURT: Fine. Great.

2 MR. MILLER: Thank you, Your Honor. Number 13, Your 3 Honor, is the motion of DnB NOR Bank ASA for relief from the 4 automatic stay. This, Your Honor, was, I think, if I recall
5 correctly, was to be set up as a status conference with White & 6 Case representing the moving parties. The parties are in 7 negotiation, Your Honor, to resolve this matter. They are very 8 confident that by December 3 it will be resolved. So we're 9 asking that it be moved to the December 3 calendar.

10 THE COURT: Are you from White & Case?

11 MR. NICHOLS: Philip Nichols, White & Case, Your 12 Honor, for DnB. Mr. Miller has correctly stated the status of 13 the matter.

14 THE COURT: That's fine. And I'll simply note that 15 when this came up at the November 5 hearing, December 3 was 16 noted as an outside date for purposes of conducting what might 17 have been a contested hearing. I take it from the comments 18 both of counsel for the movant and for the debtor that parties 19 are highly confident that this will be resolved prior to the 20 December 3 hearing by consent. Is that correct?

21 MR. MILLER: The debtors are confident, Your Honor.

22 MR. NICHOLS: As with DnB, Your Honor. However --

23 THE COURT: Fine.

24 MR. NICHOLS: However, we would hope that we'd keep 25 that on as for potentially being a contested hearing, if the

1       need arose, if the parties were not able to --

2               THE COURT:   It'll be on the list, and what happens 3       that day will be determined that day.

4               MR. NICHOLS:   Thank you, Your Honor.

5               MR. MILLER:   Your Honor, the next matter on the 6       calendar, number 14, is the debtors' amended motion to further 7       extend the time to file the debtors' schedules, statement of 8       financial affairs and related documents.   There is an objection 9       that's been filed, Your Honor, by Harbinger Funds opposing the 10      extension of time.   As we have pointed out, Your Honor, in the 11      motion and in the reply, in many respects, this is a unique, 12      complex and a very large and complex case.   And we have 13      outlined, Your Honor, in the reply similar cases of almost this 14      type of complexity and size in which the extension of time to 15      file schedules and statement of affairs, etcetera, has been 16      extended for a considerable period of time.

17              We have explained, Your Honor, and I think almost 18      everybody is aware of the complexities of this case, 19      particularly, with respect to closing the books, preparing the 20      schedules, which is going to be a Herculean task, Your Honor, 21      with the number of creditors and transactions that still have 22      to be ascertained.   And every day there are new situations that 23      are popping up.   An extension of sixty days, Your Honor, in the 24      context of these cases, is really a -- almost mandatory because 25      of the nature of this case.   And for all the reasons we've

1       said -- I mean, the objection of Harbinger is there is no
2       transparency. That may have been true, Your Honor, in the 3       first two weeks of this case, but that has changed 4       dramatically. As I pointed out, with the additional Web 5       sites -- and there are a hundred names in one Web site, Your 6       Honor, of people who can be contacted about individual 7       problems, tracing their assets to the extent we can trace. And 8       one of the problems is, Your Honor, is going through these 9       wonderful technologically advanced systems that you keep 10      hitting roadblocks and you have to find the person who can give 11      you the password to get past that portion of it to get 12      information.

13               But surprisingly, Your Honor, information is 14      beginning to come in as to where, for example, somebody's 15      securities may have been trapped on September 15th. So there 16      is -- I would submit to Your Honor, there is a really great 17      amount of transparency at this time and that every effort will 18      be made to get these schedules and statement of affairs filed 19      as soon as possible. And sixty days is a relatively mild 20      request. So we submit, Your Honor, that the request should be 21      granted.

22               THE COURT: Is Harbinger still pressing its 23      objection? Apparently so.

24               MS. RUTKOWSKI: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Rheba
25      Rutkowski from Bingham McCutchen representing the Harbinger

1 Funds. And, yes, we do continue to press our objection. Yes, 2 we are concerned about transparency but, in this instance,
3 we're concerned only about just broad disclosure of information
4 to all creditors that the bankruptcy rules require be disclosed 5 early on in the case. We appreciate all the obstacles that the 6 debtors have run into in terms of trying to stabilize the 7 situation and gain access to information, but the reasons 8 proffered in support of this further request for an extension 9 are essentially the same as the reasons proffered in the first 10 request. And I wonder if we'll still be here in January with 11 another request because what I'm hearing about progress, and 12 I'm hearing that things are coming together and that there is 13 stabilization and greater access, but I haven't heard anything 14 yet that indicates that we will be any closer in January than 15 we are today.

16 Our objection is limited. We're not asking for an 17 order requiring that this information be disclosed tomorrow.
18 We think by thirty days they ought to be able to provide 19 something at least in accordance with what Mr. Marsal
20 represented at the October 16th hearing. If they do have a 21 handle on it, then we ought to have disclosure for everybody, 22 not by contacting people on a Web site or asking for one-off 23 meetings. Surely, that is not the most efficient way to 24 proceed with this.

25 So, that's all we ask for is what the Bankruptcy Code

1 requires. And we haven't heard anything that constitutes, in 2 our view, just cause for a further extension based on the same 3 reasons that were supplied before.

4 THE COURT: Okay. I'm very mindful of Harbinger's
5 early request for information and the fact that, at the time
6 that request was initially made for 2004 discovery, this case
7 was in a different place. And Mr. Miller's opening remarks 8 today made clear that enormous progress has been made even in 9 the last month in terms of stabilizing the business, 10 normalizing its operations. And the ability as a result of the 11 approval today of the debtors' ability to hire new people to 12 deal with the unwind of derivative trades, to me, is a further 13 sign that this a work in progress as to which very substantial 14 work has already been accomplished.

15 But it is not unusual for bankruptcy courts to extend 16 for cause shown the time to file schedules and statements of 17 financial affairs. The Harbinger papers, as written, note that 18 this is the largest -- and I think the language is "and perhaps 19 the most complex" bankruptcy cases ever filed. And that 20 recognition, I think, isn't a statement against interest as 21 much as it is a statement that recognizes the elephant that is 22 in the room. The elephant in the room is a massive information 23 problem, massive in its quantity and massive in its complexity 24 and enormous detail.

25 The fact that there are more Web sites than I can

1 count on the fingers of one hand confirms to me that reasonable 2 efforts are underway to provide the public, which has a need to 3 know, as much information as can be provided in a timely way.

4 I believe that the request to extend the time for the 5 filing of schedules and statements of financial affairs through 6 the middle of January is, under the circumstances of this case,
7 an eminently reasonable time period. And even the Harbinger
8 papers acknowledge that some more time is needed. So we're not 9 quibbling over whether or not there is more time needed. It's 10 an attempt by one creditor to cut back by thirty days the 11 period of time that the debtor itself has said is needed to get 12 the job done right.

13 I recognize that it's entirely possible, as counsel
14 for Harbinger noted, that we may find ourselves at the January 15 hearing with a request for additional time. There are 16 circumstances in this case that may not be fully ascertainable
17 now, but it's clearly squarely within my discretion to grant 18 this additional time. It's certainly not an abuse of that 19 discretion to do so, and I do so now.

20 MR. MILLER: Thank you, Your Honor. I don't want to 21 gild the lily, Your Honor, but, as Your Honor may recall, 22 Harbinger was the first of the Rule 2004 moving parties. And 23 after the -- I think it was the October 6th hearing -- or the 24 first omnibus hearing in October, Your Honor, Mr. Marsal and 25 the Alvarez team spent over two and a half hours with

1 Harbinger's representatives going over the information that was 2 requested by Harbinger. And Harbinger only has a claim based 3 upon two swap agreements in this case, Your Honor. We have 4 since discovered that Harbinger is a prime brokerage account
5 with LBIE and has a bigger involvement with LBIE. But as a 6 result of that conference, Your Honor, Your Honor may recall 7 the Harbinger Rule 2004 motion was adjourned without date. So 8 we did provide information. We continue to provide information 9 every time there is a call from Harbinger. So we are trying to 10 deal with that. And what Mr. Marsal said on October 16th that 11 in forty-five to sixty days we should be able to answer
12 specific customer requests, not that we'd be able to file 13 schedules. So, thank you, Your Honor.

14 The next --

15 THE COURT: I think Harbinger's counsel would like 16 something as a result of your having gilded the lily.

17 MR. MILLER: Okay.

18 MS. RUTKOWSKI: Yes. Thank you, Your Honor. I 19 understand your ruling, and I respect it. I just wish to take 20 issue and want to make clear that all we were asking for here
21 are disclosures required by the Bankruptcy Code.

22 THE COURT: I know exactly what you were asking for.

23 MS. RUTKOWSKI: And it has nothing to do --

24 THE COURT: I know exactly what you're asking for, 25 and I know exactly the reason that you asked for it. And

1       you're certainly within your rights to do what you did, and 2       you've lost.

3               MS. RUTKOWSKI:   Thank you.

4               THE COURT:    So you can sit down now.

5               MR. MILLER:   Your Honor, the next matter on the 6       calendar, number 15, is the motion by the trustee of SunCal for 7       relief from the automatic stay.

8               MR. GOTTFRIED:   Good afternoon, Your Honor.   Andrew 9       Gottfried, Morgan, Lewis & Bockius, along with Paul Couchot of 10      Winthrop Couchot, counsel for the movants on this matter.   The 11      SunCal, or SCC entities, which are about thirty some odd 12      movants that are in bankruptcy cases pending in the Central 13      District of California -- the movants are real estate
14      development entities with projects that are in various states
15      of development.   The debtor, Lehman Commercial Paper 16      Incorporated, and a nondebtor affiliate, Lehman ALI, have 17      advanced approximately 2.3 billion dollars for the projects.
18      They've stopped advancing, and the projects sit fallow.   These 19      advances are secured by deeds of trust on the projects' real 20      property.

21              What we have here, Your Honor, is a true anomaly
22      under the Bankruptcy Code, a situation not typical and, I 23      believe, not contemplated by the Bankruptcy Code.   In the 24      relationship between SunCal and Lehman, SunCal is the debtor in 25      bankruptcy and Lehman is the secured creditor.   Yet, the

1 automatic stay in Lehman's case, the creditor's case in this 2 relationship, prevents the debtors, the SunCal entities, from 3 taking necessary actions in their bankruptcy cases. Now, what 4 are these actions that SunCal, the debtor, wishes to undertake
5 in their bankruptcy cases that implicate Lehman's automatic
6 stay? Use of cash collateral, priming debtor-in-possession 7 financing, potential Section 363 sales and a plan of 8 reorganization, ultimately. All of these are debtor rights 9 under the Bankruptcy Code which the SunCal entities are 10 authorized to pursue in the Bankruptcy Court where their cases 11 are pending which is the Central District of California.

12 Except for this unusual twist of fate, SunCal finds 13 itself before this Court arguing with its secured creditor that 14 it should be allowed to make motions which any other debtor in 15 bankruptcy have the absolute right to make where their cases 16 are pending.

17 THE COURT: That's not entirely true. You have the 18 right to make all manner of motions in the bankruptcy case that 19 have nothing to do with Lehman, including, if you had access to 20 capital, a motion to borrow money junior to the Lehman secured 21 position that didn't impact the Lehman position at all, or a 22 motion for appointment of a trustee, or a motion to convert the 23 case to a Chapter 7, or -- and you can go through the list.
24 How about the appointment of an examiner? We just talked about 25 that earlier today. You can do that.

1 MR. GOTTFRIED: Absolutely, Your Honor, but there's 2 no money to pay it. All of the cash is cash collateral, 3 Lehman's cash collateral. We can't use it without an order of 4 the Bankruptcy Court in Central District of California.

5 THE COURT: So is your focus today use of cash 6 collateral?

7 MR. GOTTFRIED: Our focus, Your Honor, is to obtain 8 debtor-in-possession financing, use of cash collateral and a 9 potential 363 sale. Clearly, plans of reorganization are 10 further down the road. And these are all intertwined. We 11 can't get a DIP loan without a priming lien. And we recognize 12 that this is a burden that will have to be met in our case.

13 THE COURT: It's also a burden that, as you describe 14 it, would be a burden imposed on the Lehman estate because, 15 unless they're consenting to such a priming lien, which I 16 suspect they're not consenting to, you end up with a valuation 17 hearing, the expense of expert witnesses, the burden of 18 significant legal expenses on all sides, including the Lehman 19 side, and a burden on this estate. Isn't that right?

20 MR. GOTTFRIED: The way you posit it, Your Honor, 21 yes, but I submit this is an improper way of looking at it.
22 The automatic stay is designed to protect a debtor from 23 creditor action. In the instant case, Lehman's automatic stay 24 serves to protect a secured creditor from debtor relief in 25 bankruptcy which, we believe, Your Honor, turns the automatic

1 stay on its head.

2 THE COURT: If you were involved in a priming
3 fight -- I mean, I'm not having an argument with you; that's 4 for Mr. Kessler to do, I suspect. But if you're involved in a
5 priming fight, there'd be a new lender imposed over Lehman 6 potentially taking value away from Lehman, and that would be 7 the creditor, not the debtor, that would be seeking relief at 8 Lehman's expense and would be causing Lehman, through the 9 debtors' efforts, in your California case, to incur unnecessary 10 expense and distraction. So I think, while I understand your 11 colorful argument that it's been turned on its head, it really 12 hasn't been in your example because it's a new creditor of your 13 California debtors who will be coming in at your request to 14 take advantage of the Lehman position and collateral.

15 MR. GOTTFRIED: Well, respectfully, Your Honor, "take 16 advantage", I would submit, is a harsh way of looking at it.
17 We would have the burden of convincing the California court 18 that Lehman's position was adequately protected. And there's 19 no reason to assume that the California court is not able to 20 make that kind of determination.

21 THE COURT: Yes, but it would be, if contested, a 22 determination that can only be made after the expenditure of 23 some cost expense delay, inconvenience and the like. It 24 wouldn't happen easily. And I suspect that Lehman will not go 25 quietly.

1           MR. GOTTFRIED: That may very well be, Your Honor, 2 but, again, the automatic stay is for the protection of the 3 debtor, not the secured creditor. And it is Lehman's position
4 as secured creditor that's at issue here. Every secured 5 creditor would prefer not to have a priming lien motion made 6 against them in Bankruptcy Court, but no other secured creditor 7 has the right to stop the debtor from doing that. That's what 8 Lehman is asking for, Your Honor, in objecting to this --

9           THE COURT: Actually, Lehman's not asking for 10 anything.

11          MR. GOTTFRIED: In objecting to this motion.

12          THE COURT: Mr. Gottfried, you're not -- Lehman's not 13 asking for anything. Lehman is in court not because they're 14 asking for something. They're in court because you're the 15 moving party asking for something. So you have it backwards.

16          MR. GOTTFRIED: Well, let me postulate this, Your 17 Honor. Lehman's objection to this relief: What is it really 18 going to do on a practical level? On a practical level, what 19 they're saying is if we, SunCal entities, want to make a motion 20 for a priming DIP in our bankruptcy case, we have to first 21 convince Your Honor of the merit of that motion. That's really 22 what they're asking for in the practicalities of this, that we 23 have to try our priming motion first before Your Honor, and if 24 Your Honor agrees with our position at that point that there is 25 merit to our priming motion, you would then grant us relief

1 from the automatic stay. We would then go to California in our 2 Bankruptcy Court and make our motion for a priming lien,
3 priming DIP yet again, and they would get to argue yet again
4 before the Bankruptcy Court in California that the relief 5 shouldn't be granted. I would submit, Your Honor, that this is 6 not a tenable proposition where you have two competing 7 bankruptcy cases like this that to require the debtor in the 8 California case because of the happenstance of the Lehman case 9 to try all of its motions twice is unfair and unnecessary.
10 There's sort of this sub silentio, I think, tenor in opposing 11 this motion that somehow Lehman's not going to get a fair shake 12 out there, and there's no basis for that. Lehman will have the 13 rights of any secured creditor in opposing whatever relief we 14 seek from the Bankruptcy Court in California. The automatic 15 stay was not designed to promote a secured creditor's position 16 the way it is attempted to be utilized in this instance.

17 Since we made this motion for relief from the 18 automatic stay, the nondebtor Lehman affiliate, Lehman ALI, 19 served additional foreclosure notices on us. This is turning 20 the automatic stay not from the shield that it's supposed to be 21 into a sword to be used against another debtor in another 22 court. This just isn't -- it isn't fair. And it just isn't a 23 practical way to handle the coordination of two debtors that 24 find themselves in the circumstances that they're in.

25 THE COURT: Well, let me tell you what the practical

1 way is. Mr. Miller, during his opening status report, 2 commented on a number of bankruptcy cases that actually all 3 involve Lehman entities around the world, and parties-in-4 interest in those cases are working cooperatively with each 5 other with different estates. Litigation is not the answer;
6 some attempt to consensual resolution might be. And that's not 7 to say that it's possible in this instance, but your rhetoric 8 about how unfair it is that your lender happens to be in 9 bankruptcy, believe me, your lender doesn't think it's so fair 10 to be in bankruptcy either. There are a whole bunch of world
11 circumstances that caused that. And if your particular client 12 happens to be at the wrong end of this proceeding, as they used 13 to say in law school, you take your plaintiffs as you find 14 them. Well, you take this lender as you find it, which is a 15 large complex Chapter 11 debtor that happens to be your lender, 16 to the tune of 2.3 billion dollars. That's a huge asset to 17 protect in this case. And you're suggesting to me that what I 18 should do in the interest of giving you the ability to file any 19 motion you want to file in cases that are not before me is to 20 basically strip away the singular benefit that this debtor has, 21 which is the automatic stay, for no cause shown? Simply that 22 there's the potential for a brush fire on one of your 23 properties? This was listed today, Mr. Gottfried, as an 24 emergency as a result of a hearing that took place by phone in 25 which one of your colleagues urged me to list this early

1 because there was a stated emergency. And the stated emergency 2 included a list of potential horrors that could befall the 3 assets in California. I don't for a minute suggest having seen 4 video reports of brush fires in California that it's not a very 5 real risk. But why should this estate bear any of it?

6 MR. GOTTFRIED: I think, Your Honor, number one, we 7 weren't suggesting unfairness by Lehman but unfairness by the 8 circumstance of the automatic stay, which I don't believe was 9 intended to apply in this situation. Others may disagree, but 10 that's what I believe. We are an extremist. We have no access 11 to any funds whatsoever. We do have real practical problems, 12 and I recognize this is not an evidentiary hearing where we can 13 put that forth. And we think it is justified, Your Honor, to 14 weigh the relative harm and not just focus on the fact that 15 this is a substantial asset for Lehman, an asset that it holds 16 as a creditor. There is a countervailing equity in favor of 17 the SunCal companies, which are stymied right now because they 18 can't do anything of practicality in their bankruptcy cases, 19 that while Your Honor mentioned that there are types of motions
20 that can be made, which is true, but not the critical motions 21 that have to be made in any case where all of the assets are 22 subject to a lien. We have no use of cash collateral. We have 23 no ability to get a DIP loan because nobody's providing one on 24 a junior basis. That's just the facts which I don't think are 25 subject to any dispute.

1           So to say that the matter can be resolved, of course,
2           I'm the first one to suggest that matters in most instances can 3           be resolved, but we don't find ourselves either with a luxury
4           of time, because of the condition we're in in California, for a 5           prolonged discussion which we've tried to have. We're out of 6           time. That's just the facts. We're not stripping Lehman of 7           any rights. There's a court that will hear any motions that we 8           bring before it. If we don't have merit to our motions, the 9           Court will deny it. And, yes, there will be some expense 10          involved for the estate, but this is an asset of the estate 11          that, obviously, it will want to protect and it's worth the 12          expenditure of some money if they view it as being advisable.
13          But to say, in effect, that we're just going to put those cases 14          on ice in California because Lehman has the automatic stay is 15          not right. I don't think it's in Lehman's interest, but it's 16          not for me to say so. But it's certainly not in the interest 17          of the SunCal debtors that are frozen in position. We can't do 18          anything in these cases without access to funds. We have no 19          funds to do anything.

20                 And we can, I'm sure, debate about, if it comes down 21          to this, whether brush has to be cleared or levies fixed or 22          security measures taken against vandalism and things like that, 23          but that's really not the point. The point is we're just 24          frozen in place. And we realize this is a massive case, Your 25          Honor, nobody every suggested otherwise, with multiple

1 interests. But this is truly, I believe, a unique situation.
2 To my knowledge, this did not come up before in this case, and 3 I don't know whether it will subsequently. But it is 4 juxtaposition where the debtor is the creditor and, therefore, 5 can hold its debtor at bay in its bankruptcy case. And what we 6 are suggesting, Your Honor, is to just break that Gordian Knot 7 so that normal debtor/creditor relations in bankruptcy can 8 proceed. And I'm not for a moment denying yes, some funds will 9 be expended, but this estate has the funds, certainly, to 10 appear in Bankruptcy Court in California on a few occasions if 11 it deems it advisable to protect its large investment. And I
12 think it's that type of balancing, Your Honor, that's critical 13 to this situation. But to just, in effect, say well, work it 14 out, well, we'd love to work it out.

15 THE COURT: Mr. Gottfried, that's not what I said.
16 Just to the extent that you're in a throwaway attempting to 17 characterize comments from the bench, I'm going to break in and 18 correct you. What I suggested was not just work it out; I 19 suggested that there are examples already available to me in 20 this case of parties who have been successful in resolving 21 enormously intricate problems, intercreditor problems, within 22 the Lehman enterprise itself, demonstrating that it is possible 23 for creative hardworking intelligent people to find solutions.
24 Obviously, there are remedies available if those solutions 25 can't be crafted.

1           You have, however, come in on an emergency basis
2 seeking a blanket lifting of the automatic stay. At the time
3 you filed your motion, there was a general reference to DIP
4 financing. The DIP financing motion was not attached, not 5 described in detail. I didn't even learn the identity of the 6 lender until a telephone conference when I asked the question.
7 So the papers that bring you to Court are incredibly broad in 8 general and seek incredibly broad and general relief, which 9 goes well beyond which I consider appropriate in terms of 10 showing the cause that you need to show.

11           Additionally, you need to be married to the Sonax
12 standards, and I'm not at all sure that you have satisfied one 13 of them. You make what amounts to an equitable argument, 14 "we're in trouble and we need help from you," so that we can go 15 to the Bankruptcy Court in California and file the motions that 16 we need to file that admittedly will be disadvantageous to 17 Lehman. Give me your list of Sonax standards that suggest to 18 me that stay relief is appropriate today.

19           MR. GOTTFRIED: I'm afraid, Your Honor, that our 20 position, as I've tried to articulate -- that this is a unique 21 circumstance. It's not just Sonax; it's the unique 22 circumstance that what we're talking about is the automatic 23 stay, not as debtor protection but as creditor protection, 24 because that's the relationship between the parties here.

25           My client's the debtor in this relationship. Lehman

1 is the creditor. At the very least, Your Honor, we should be 2 permitted to make a motion for use of cash collateral and a 3 motion for debtor-in-possession financing.

4 THE COURT: So is that a modification of your motion?

5 MR. GOTTFRIED: If it would please Your Honor, then, 6 yes. If it would please Your Honor, that would at least enable 7 us to start a process in the works. And I appreciate Your 8 Honor didn't have a DIP term sheet; these things are sort of 9 fast-moving. As Your Honor can appreciate, sometimes DIP loans
10 don't get finally negotiated until a hearing in court or a half 11 hour before the hearing in court, and that's not always in the 12 control of the debtor that these things are fluid. But there's 13 no reason, Your Honor, respectfully, that we shouldn't at least 14 have the opportunity to take our best shot at preserving 15 something here and avoiding a worse situation. If Lehman is 16 correct that it wants to oppose our motion it will have every 17 opportunity to do so.

18 THE COURT: But at the moment, the only motion that 19 Lehman is opposing is your motion for broad-based relief from 20 the automatic stay to allow you to do whatever you think you 21 need to do in your bankruptcy cases in California. That's the 22 only motion which I'm aware of which is pending.

23 MR. GOTTFRIED: That is, Your Honor. And if we could 24 have stay relief to make a motion for use of cash collateral 25 and for obtaining debtor-in-possession financing, that would at

1       least enable us to start down a process. And I'm not 2       precluding discussions with Lehman as that process goes on, but 3       it puts us on a level playing field to move forward.

4               THE COURT: There was a question that I asked you
5       that you didn't answer, and I'm not going to press you on it 6       but I'm simply going to give you the opportunity, if you wish 7       to, to give me the list of Sonax factors that you believe are 8       satisfied here.

9               MR. GOTTFRIED: I don't think it's the list of Sonax 10       factors, Your Honor; I think it's cause based upon the 11       relationship of the parties here that the stay was not intended 12       as a creditor protection.

13              THE COURT: So your argument is more or less 14       exclusively based on the fact that you believe it is anomalous 15       for a secured creditor to also be a debtor in a bankruptcy case 16       entitled to automatic stay protections and that that is a 17       situation which was not contemplated by the drafters of the 18       code or Congress in enacting the automatic stay? Is that your 19       argument?

20              MR. GOTTFRIED: Yes, Your Honor. I believe that is 21       the case. Now, this is not to say that we don't have other 22       factors that we could present about the extreme situation we're 23       in, but I recognize this is not an evidentiary hearing so 24       that -- but I don't believe --

25              THE COURT: But that's your legal argument?

1 MR. GOTTFRIED: Yes, that is correct, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: Okay. I understand your argument.

3 MR. GOTTFRIED: Thank you, Your Honor.

4 MR. KESSLER: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Michael 5 Kessler for Weil, Gotshal & Manges, for the debtors. Based on 6 the argument of the movants and also on the Sonax case
7 decision, which says that the movant must establish a prima 8 facie case before the debtor even has to respond, I think that 9 it would be appropriate in the nature of a motion for judgment
10 to ask that you deny the motion before I even respond and then, 11 if necessary, I should go on. I don't believe that they've 12 made a prima facie case.

13 THE COURT: Well, we're just having a family 14 argument. Rather than treat this like we're at the midpoint of 15 a jury trial, I think what we're going to do is give you an 16 opportunity to express on the public record why I should deny 17 this motion as opposed to simply assume that your opponent has 18 already fallen on his sword.

19 MR. KESSLER: All right. The SunCal bankruptcies in 20 California are enormously complicated, and, as you heard, there 21 are approximately thirty of them that have now been filed.
22 This motion, however, only relates to approximately fourteen of 23 those cases. The 2.3 billion dollars of Lehman loans and 24 first-lien mortgages relate to those properties and not to many 25 of the others. And so what you see before you is just,

1 perhaps, the tip of the iceberg. And if you open this door
2 today for the lift stay, I believe you're going to be flooded 3 with these types of things.

4 THE COURT: Explain that to me. Let's just say, for 5 the sake of discussion, that I were to agree that the stay
6 should be lifted. What is the parade of horrors that flows 7 from that?

8 MR. KESSLER: Well, I will go through what the 9 lifting of the stay, pursuant to the motion before you, will 10 result in. But as you so noted from reading their pleadings, 11 they are not looking in their motion to lift the stay solely to 12 obtain use of cash collateral and to get a priming DIP lien.
13 That's what they wanted to do initially. But their motion is 14 more expansive than that as it's asking this Court to lift the 15 automatic stay, for all purposes, in their case. And we 16 already know that another of the SunCal cases in California 17 which they haven't brought before you for a lift stay yet -- 18 there have been representations made in pleadings and even 19 copies of complaints attached as exhibits in an effort to stop 20 Lehman foreclosures of its properties in other cases that they 21 intend to bring fraudulent conveyance actions, insubordination 22 actions under 510(c) and other affirmative actions. So what 23 this motion is not telling you up front, when they say we want 24 to do four things but perhaps more and we're asking you to open 25 the door for everything, is not telling you that undoubtedly

1     what they want to do is try to bring other affirmative actions
2     against Lehman in these cases, too.

3             Now, if I may, I'd like to kind of go through with 4     you my argument as to why the stay shouldn't be lifted here.
5     First, contrary to what you heard, this Court should not give 6     any special deference to the fact that the SunCal entities are 7     in their Chapter 11 proceeding. There's nothing in Section 362
8     or in the cases that in any way alters the burdens or the test 9     for a Chapter 11 debtor to obtain stay relief from another 10    Chapter 11 debtor. I believe that this Court needs to look at 11    their motion to lift stay in the same way as it would if they 12    were a nondebtor in Chapter 11 and they were attempting to 13    bring an action or a lawsuit against this Chapter 11 debtor in 14    another court, because that's exactly what they would be doing.
15    They're seeking affirmative relief in the form of a priming DIP 16    loan or the use of cash collateral or any of the other things 17    that they would do if you opened the door here.

18            Now, to give any special deference to them because 19    they are a Chapter 11 debtor is, in essence, this Court saying 20    their Chapter 11 cases are more important or more significant 21    than these Chapter 11 cases, that our automatic stay should 22    give way because they are in a Chapter 11. And I don't believe 23    that there's any case law --

24            THE COURT: Mr. Kessler, let me break in and just ask 25    you a question on that. I'm not trying to intrude on the

1 sequence of your arguments but there's something that concerns
2 me. It's not a question of whether one Chapter 11 case is more
3 important than another, as much as what happens, just in terms
4 of case administration, to the various cases that are pending 5 in Santa Ana, California. If there is never any relief from 6 the automatic stay, these Lehman cases have the potential of 7 being long-lasting. Mr. Miller, at the outset, talked about 8 cases in the U.K. that might go on for four years, and I have 9 no idea how long these cases will be active before me. But is 10 it your position that there is a permanent freeze on case 11 administration in the California bankruptcy cases? Because 12 that's a problem, too.

13 MR. KESSLER: Right, and I do not make that argument.

14 THE COURT: So is there a way --

15 MR. KESSLER: I'm here arguing against the motion 16 that's before you today --

17 THE COURT: I understand, but --

18 MR. KESSLER: -- not any other motion that may be 19 brought. And Your Honor made one suggestion, and that is the 20 parties should talk and try to reach some form of consensual 21 agreement. There are other ways that Courts have resolved 22 these difficult issues where there are debtors in multiple 23 bankruptcies. We've had protocols, for example, in other 24 cases. And that's not a subject that's on the calendar for 25 today, but it's something that Your Honor might suggest the

1 parties talk about. But it's not something that should be 2 raised today when they're asking for this type of emergency 3 relief. So there are other options that don't necessarily 4 involve an immediate lifting of the stay.

5 THE COURT: Fine.

6 MR. KESSLER: Now, as Your Honor pointed out, we have 7 to look at the statute, and Section 362(d)(1) tells us that, as 8 far as the SunCal debtors are concerned, the only basis for 9 their lifting the automatic stay is 362(d)(1) for cause. And 10 during the telephonic chambers conference in which they sought 11 an expedited hearing for this motion, Your Honor permitted the 12 hearing to go forward today with legal argument only and noted 13 that if an evidentiary hearing is necessary we would reschedule 14 it for another day.

15 And so I understood that ruling to mean that this 16 will be, if it doesn't conclude today on oral argument, a 17 preliminary hearing under 362(e) and that if an evidentiary 18 hearing is necessary we'll go to a later adjourned date for 19 that as a final hearing. The reason I say that is because I 20 want to raise in defense of their motion a lot of fact issues 21 that are in their motion, in attachments to their motion, and 22 are relevant to the matters raised in their motion but are not 23 identified for them. And to the extent -- and I don't believe 24 that they're subject to any form of dispute, but if they are, 25 then I think that we're entitled to go to the next hearing and 1 put evidence on to show what I will demonstrate.

2 So they haven't made any prima facie showing of cause
3 here at all. In fact, Your Honor asked several times how do
4 you meet the Sonax factors, which is the Second Circuit's test
5 for relief from the automatic stay in a situation of this sort.
6 They cite the Sonax. They say in their pleading that Sonax 7 controls but they don't, in any way, try to demonstrate to the 8 Court that they do meet the Sonax factors. Well, in fact, if 9 you do go through the Sonax factors, you see that they don't 10 actually meet them in this case. The way the Sonax factors are 11 weighed is that where a movant seeks relief from the automatic 12 stay in order to bring an action against the debtor -- excuse 13 me, I shouldn't say against the debtor. In order to bring an 14 action in another court to the effect that that action does not 15 affect the debtor or does not affect the debtor materially, it 16 weighs more in favor of lifting the stay. But the first Sonax 17 factor says that if there is lack of any connection with or 18 interference with the bankruptcy case, then it weighs more in 19 favor of lifting the stay; whereas when there is a strong 20 connection to the bankruptcy case, where there is interference 21 with the bankruptcy case, it weighs strongly in favor of not 22 lifting the automatic stay. Here, as Your Honor so rightly 23 pointed out, in order to get a priming DIP loan where they've 24 already conceded that we have a first lien secured mortgage on 25 all of their properties for 2.3 billion dollars, they would be

1 taking affirmative action against the estate clearly in 2 violation -- I shouldn't say in violation, but clearly in a way
3 that the first Sonax factor says you should not lift the stay.

4 There are other Sonax factors that clearly weigh 5 against lifting the stay: whether the other proceeding
6 involves a debtor as a fiduciary; whether the debtors' insurer 7 has assumed full responsibility for defending; whether the 8 action primarily involves third parties; whether the litigation 9 in the other forum will prejudice the interest of other 10 creditors. All of these factors clearly weigh in favor of not 11 lifting the stay here because we don't have a situation, for 12 example, where it affects third parties and not so much the 13 debtor. We don't have a situation where an insurer is going to 14 take over the litigation on behalf of the creditor and,
15 therefore, it won't affect the estate. We don't have a 16 situation where the litigation in the other forum will not 17 prejudice the interests of creditors in this case. All of 18 those factors weigh strongly in favor of not lifting the stay 19 here.

20 There are at least two other Sonax factors that are 21 not relevant at all here: whether the judgment claim that they 22 seek in the other action is subject to equitable subordination; 23 whether the movant's success in the other proceeding would 24 result in a judicial lien against the debtor. In sum, the SCC 25 motion relies almost entirely on grounds for cause that are

1 just allegations that don't meet any of Sonax factors.

2 Now, let me go through some of what they say in their 3 motion. The allegations they make in the motion are a complete
4 red herring. What they say is that they have these emergency 5 expenses and that these debtors committed, through a 6 restructuring agreement, to advance monies to cover these 7 expenses. We've advanced all the monies that were to be 8 advanced under the 2.3 billion dollars in first liens. They're 9 not saying that there are any monies to be advanced there.
10 What they're saying is that there is this restructuring 11 agreement between the parties in which the debtors agree to 12 advance monies for emergency repairs. The restructuring 13 agreement is attached to the declaration of Mr. Cooke, which 14 is, in turn, attached to as an exhibit in their motion. And it
15 is clear, if you look at Section 1(h) of the restructuring 16 agreement on page 5 of that agreement, that if any party is 17 obligated to advance funds for emergency basis, it's Lehman 18 ALI, Lehman A-L-I, who is not even a debtor in this case.
19 There is nothing that restructuring agreement -- that even if 20 there were an obligation that they allege that would commit or 21 require a debtor in this case to advance those funds.

22 THE COURT: Let me stop you for a second on that 23 point, Mr. Kessler. In the ordinary course of troubled real 24 estate workouts or bankruptcies, secured creditors, who do not 25 necessarily have a legal obligation to do so, will nonetheless

1 make so-called protective advances in order to assure that 2 their collateral will be secure and that the value of their 3 investment will be preserved and protected. What I don't 4 understand in terms of the current dispute, and I'm not 5 suggesting it needs to be answered now, but I'd like you to 6 think about it at some point between today's hearing and the 7 next hearing if there is one, is why there isn't a business
8 solution and why either the nondebtor Lehman ALI, as a 9 potential funding source, if it has liquidity, or given the 10 billions of dollars in cash resources that Lehman currently 11 has, wouldn't consider it prudent, assuming it were prudent, to 12 protect this asset. It's a 2.3 billion dollar investment; some 13 cost.

14 MR. KESSLER: I think I can address that, Your Honor, 15 as --

16 THE COURT: Okay.

17 MR. KESSLER: -- I continue through. It's a little 18 convoluted, but I think I can address it.

19 THE COURT: I'm used to convoluted.

20 MR. KESSLER: Okay. If I can refer next to page 3 of 21 their motion and continuing on to page 4, the movant set out in 22 seven bullet points the details of their alleged needs for 23 emergency funds as a substantiation for lifting the stay here.
24 The first bullet point speaks to a need for cash to avoid the 25 calling of completion bonds to complete the streets -- or to

1 complete streets. The calling of these bonds would indeed
2 result in cash to complete the streets. To ask for a priming
3 DIP lien to avoid the calling of the bonds is for one reason 4 and one reason specifically, and that is because some of the 5 principals of the SunCal entities are personally obligated on 6 the bonds. And to have someone else fund those expenses 7 relieves them of personal liability. And what they would do is 8 have Lehman advance those funds when there are other sources of 9 cash available in the form of the completion bonds.

10 Now, the second bullet point speaks to cash needs for 11 the Pacific Point project. The SCC entities no longer even own 12 this project. The project was foreclosed by Lehman and is 13 owned by a Lehman entity.

14 The fourth, sixth and seventh bullet points relate to 15 the 10,000 Santa Monica, the Oak Knoll and the Delta Cove 16 projects. These projects are not even covered by the 17 restructuring agreement, which they use as their basis for 18 Lehman's obligation to advance funds to them. If you read the 19 agreement, those three projects are not even projects that are 20 to be funded under that agreement.

21 Now, the reason -- the primary reason for seeking 22 emergency relief from the stay is alleged to be a desire to 23 obtain a seventy-five million dollar priming DIP loan that 24 would prime Lehman's approximately 2.3 billion dollars of first 25 liens. And the motion, of course, doesn't identify the lender.

1 But at our chambers conference, Your Honor required that they 2 provide us with a copy of the term sheet for that loan, and 3 they did.

4 And so the term sheet perspective lender is from D.E.
5 Shaw, and we reviewed the term sheet. As we say in our 6 response, there's at least two strong reasons based on that 7 term sheet to not grant the stay relief that would allow the 8 SCC entities to proceed with the fool's mission, as we say it,
9 to seek approval of this DIP loan. This DIP loan is nothing 10 but a blackmail loan in order to compel Lehman to come in and 11 protect its property interest by advancing the monies. And, in 12 fact, it has already been somewhat successful in that blackmail 13 mission. We have given them an alternate DIP proposal. We 14 haven't discussed it with them yet because we only gave it to 15 them yesterday, and we would welcome the opportunity to discuss 16 it. But one of the obvious means for getting that term sheet
17 was to compel Lehman to try to advance monies.

18 Now, why do I say that? They concede in their 19 motion, in several places, in paragraphs 2, 7 and 20, and also 20 in the declaration, that all of the SCC entities' assets are 21 encumbered by Lehman's first lien. Lehman's loans are 2.3 22 billion dollars, and no one here will contest that the 23 collateral value has declined far below the 2.3 billion dollar 24 loan amount. If there was equity in these properties, they 25 would have said so in their motion. They would have put their

1 best foot forward in their motion to get relief from the stay 2 here, but they didn't.

3 In addition, they concede that there are no
4 unencumbered assets from which they can give adequate
5 protection to Lehman. You can't give us adequate protection 6 from the collateral we -- from excess value in the collateral.
7 They can't give us adequate protection from unencumbered assets 8 because there are none. And they have no other means for 9 providing adequate protection. Again, I would offer, Your 10 Honor, if they did have adequate means, you would have seen it 11 in the motion or you would have heard someone say it here 12 because they're trying to get relief from the stay.

13 So why would the Court grant this type of stay relief 14 to force us to go to California and defend against that DIP 15 motion with property appraisers and an awful lot of money spent 16 in legal fees and other professional fees when it's clear on 17 the face of it that they don't have a basis for providing 18 adequate protection? But even assuming, arguendo, that one 19 could convince a Court that Lehman would somehow be adequately 20 protected, the D.E. Shaw term sheet outlines what we call an 21 egregious loan that cannot be consummated under its terms or 22 alternatively as a classic loan to own. It's a blackmail loan
23 to steal Lehman's property if Lehman doesn't come up and pay 24 off that loan. And here's why. The loan has a ninety-day 25 maturity date, and it provides for the immediate requirement to

1 file a 363 motion to sell the assets. So if that loan were 2 approved for the full seventy-five million dollars, a 363 sale
3 motion would have to be approved by the Court, and this 4 property would be put up for sale immediately. And if not 5 sold, the loan would mature in ninety days and D.E. Shaw would 6 be in there trying to foreclose out Lehman's 2.3 billion 7 dollars of liens in order to pay them back seventy-five million 8 dollars.

9 Now, I would submit to you that the SCC entities
10 can't even meet the closing conditions because, among other 11 things, it requires that LV Pacific Point LLC be a borrower.
12 That's a company that Lehman owns entirely. It's the company
13 that took the Pacific Point project through foreclosure. So 14 they can't meet that condition of the term sheet.

15 They also can't meet the condition of the term sheet 16 because some of the other required borrowers who are in 17 bankruptcy through -- the involuntarily petitions have been 18 filed against them are entities in which Lehman controls the 19 equity. And so they couldn't give those properties and 20 those -- they couldn't make those entities borrowers to D.E.
21 Shaw without Lehman's consent.

22 Now, the D.E. Shaw loan gets even worse. This 23 seventy-five million dollar loan for a maximum ninety-day term
24 has a fourteen percent interest rate, a four and a half million 25 dollars in cash fees paid half at closing and half at the

1 ninety-day maturity and a half percent per month, which is an 2 additional six percent per annum, payable monthly on the unused
3 portion of the seventy-five million dollars, calculated 4 together, this loan -- the interest and fees over the ninety-5 day period calculates out to a thirty-eight percent interest 6 rate for the ninety-day period. And it's all being paid out of 7 the funding of the DIP loan. So, in essence, D.E. Shaw is 8 lending money and putting it back in its own pocket for a 9 ninety-day period.

10 Now, as I mentioned earlier, what we're going to have 11 in this ninety-day period, if it's somehow approved, is we're 12 going to have a 363 motion to sell the property. And if it 13 doesn't sell in the ninety days, we're going to have a 14 foreclosure action to pay off the DIP. So what does all this 15 mean to Lehman? Within ninety days, Lehman, to protect its 16 interest in the collateral, securing it's 2.3 billion dollars 17 in loans, we're going to have to step up to either buy out the 18 D.E. Shaw loan at the 363 sale or at the foreclosure sale. And 19 we're going to end up buying out that loan inclusive of the 20 over seven million dollars in interest and fees that will have 21 been paid, the expenses that would have been advanced so that 22 the bonds are not called, where we could have called the bonds 23 and let those monies be used to pay property expense.

24 And so how does the weighing of harm in this case
25 tilt in favor of the SCC entities? As I mentioned earlier,

1       this is a blackmail DIP loan. They know, and anyone who looks 2       at it knows, that these debtors, these Lehman debtors, are 3       going to have to come in and protect their interest and advance 4       up to seventy-five million dollars if that DIP loan is 5       approved. There is no other way out of it. These debtors 6       can't repay the property -- I mean, repay the loan. They've 7       admitted it. They're either going to sell it or let it go to 8       foreclosure. And the only advantage of this process for SCC is 9       to not allow these bonds -- these completion bonds to be 10      called.

11               And so for all those reasons, we clearly don't 12      believe that the motion carries the day and that this Court 13      should protect Lehman under its automatic stay from having to 14      undergo that process and have to fight its way in a California 15      court on this fool's mission for them to get a DIP loan that is 16      clearly engineered to be blackmail upon Lehman to force it to 17      come in and fund those amounts.

18               And, as I've said, it has now partially worked 19      because we've given them a proposed alternate DIP loan: 20      different terms, no fees, lower interest rate and also, for 21      obvious reason, lower an amount. And if the Court denies the 22      lift stay motion, I think it's perfectly reasonable that we'll 23      go out and start talking to them about our alternate proposal.

24               You asked me the question earlier why doesn't Lehman 25      want to advance the funds to protect this collateral, and I

1       said I would answer it. And I'm saying to you that's why we 2       propose an alternate DIP loan. We think that our alternate 3       proposal for a DIP would advance the necessary funds to protect 4       our collateral in a reasonable way, paying the most 5       emergency -- the expenses that are the greatest emergency on a 6       program that the SunCal entities had previously presented to 7       the Lehman entities. There is no need for seventy-five million 8       dollars here. There is no need for high fees. There's no need 9       for egregious interest rates. And there's no need to compel 10      Lehman to come in and pay off someone else's loan in ninety 11      days.

12               THE COURT: Thank you. I'll hear from the creditors' 13      committee.

14              MR. DUNNE: Thank you, Your Honor. For the record, 15      Dennis Dunne, from Milbank Tweed, on behalf of the Official 16      Creditors Committee. I'm not going to repeat the arguments in 17      the pleadings or made by Mr. Kessler a few moments ago, which 18      frankly moots out a lot of what I had to say. But let's just 19      take it back to the motion that was actually filed here today 20      and talk about why we think that that should not be granted and 21      then some suggestions for moving forward.

22              Unfortunately, there are just some realities we can't 23      change. I'm sure there are not many, if not most, Lehman 24      creditors who wish that in the middle of September the Fed had 25      made a different determination with respect to bailing out

1     Lehman or not. But they did what they did, or didn't do what 2     they didn't do, and we're here today. SunCal, no doubt, wishes 3     that their secured creditors weren't in Chapter 11, but they 4     are and we can't change that. And it is those secured claims 5     that constitute the property of this estate; they're assets of 6     these estates.

7             And part of the argument that counsel for the movants
8     were making I didn't fully comprehend or it didn't make sense 9     to me. It's the notion that those claims, or secured claims, 10    which are assets -- clearly the automatic stay protects them.
11    I don't think counsel for the movants would be arguing that if 12    SunCal were not in bankruptcy that they could somehow slot in a 13    priming loan on top of Lehman's secured claims if SunCal was 14    outside of Chapter 11.

15            So if you posit that is the case, I know of no law or 16    no legal precept that the automatic stay which protects Lehman, 17    and we've done nothing to alter that, we haven't left Chapter 18    11, we haven't confirmed a plan or lifted the stay, can be 19    affected by the fact that somebody who wants to take action 20    against property of the estate has, themselves, filed for 21    Chapter 11.

22            Also, counsel for the movants, I think, postulated 23    that we will end up arguing the same legal arguments twice:
24    once before Your Honor and once in California. I don't think 25    that's true either because, while there are two Chapter 11

1 cases, the relief, obviously, is different depending on which 2 court we're in. And I think they recognize that by moving to 3 lift the stay before Your Honor to seek approval of financing
4 in California.

5 So you have the standards under 362, which we submit 6 we haven't heard any evidence with respect to. And you'll have 7 the standards under 364, potentially Section 363 in California.
8 There's simply no reason to dispense with the automatic stay 9 because of inconvenience or perceived unfairness. Yes, this 10 case -- or these cases and this fact pattern are unusual and 11 extraordinary but it is a factual reality we can't ignore, and 12 I think we've got to give effect to both cases and the law 13 that's applicable in both.

14 In terms of the way forward, and everyone's touched 15 on this, there are ways to deal with this. We should have at 16 least ad hoc negotiations with respect to what they need to 17 accomplish now and to see whether we can address that. Maybe 18 we can formalize larger, more permanent workarounds or 19 protocols, but we haven't had time or the opportunity to do 20 that. But today, under the currently crafted request for an 21 umbrella opt-out of the automatic stay on this record, as it 22 applies to the Lehman estates, the committee submits is just 23 not proper and the request should be denied.

24 And unless Your Honor has any questions, that's the 25 committee's position.

1 THE COURT: I don't, thank you. I'll hear from 2 Mr. Gottfried, who wanted to say a few words in response to 3 Mr. Kessler's argument.

4 MR. GOTTFRIED: Thank you, Your Honor. Counsel for 5 the committee actually had a curious statement, which was that 6 he didn't believe we would have this two-court problem that I
7 mentioned previously. But I disagree, and I think the basis
8 for that disagreement was made clear by counsel for Lehman 9 because what counsel for Lehman was doing before was arguing 10 the merits or their perceived lack of merits in a DIP term
11 sheet for a motion that we haven't made yet for a DIP loan.
12 And that is the legal predicament that we are in, Your Honor, 13 right now, which is that if we want a DIP loan, whether it's 14 D.E. Shaw or XYZ or even Lehman, that we have to, in effect, 15 under the present circumstances, try it first in this Court and 16 then, if Your Honor agrees it's appropriate, try it again in 17 California. And that would be true even if it were a Lehman 18 DIP loan without relief from the automatic stay.

19 And that, Your Honor, I submit is not proper. It's 20 not proper procedure, it's not proper coordination through two 21 bankruptcy courts and it is unfair. No one's seeking to take 22 advantage of Lehman. They will have all of their arguments.
23 And if the DIP motion we ultimately make is as bad as they 24 portray it, I suspect the Court will deny it.

25 THE COURT: Which court?

1 MR. GOTTFRIED: The court in California, if Your 2 Honor grants us stay relief to make that motion. But, instead, 3 counsel was telling you everything that's wrong with it, and 4 that, of course, is designed to influence Your Honor and say 5 gee, this is a terrible DIP proposal, I'd never approve it.
6 But I think that misses the point. That misses the point that 7 this two-step process doesn't work. And what we're suggesting 8 is a one-step process, and that's true for anybody who makes us
9 a DIP loan, whether it's D.E. Shaw, whether it's Lehman, 10 whether it's somebody else who we manage to rustle up on the 11 eve of our hearing in California.

12 And what I'd respectfully request, Your Honor, is 13 that we have stay relief at least to seek debtor-in-possession 14 financing and use of cash collateral. To the extent that other 15 relief is sought in our motion, we could adjourn that. But 16 this is our immediate need, right now Your Honor, and it has to 17 be faced. And I'm submitting, Your Honor, that a one-court 18 solution is the best solution to this situation. Thank you.

19 THE COURT: I don't think there's any need for 20 further discussion. This is a highly unusual circumstance, as 21 everybody seems to recognize, but there's nothing unusual about 22 the automatic stay, which is something that every bankruptcy
23 lawyer is totally familiar with. And the jurisprudence
24 surrounding the automatic stay and the circumstances for a 25 judge in this circuit to grant relief from the stay happen to 1 be very well-established.

2 There's absolutely nothing about the circumstances 3 described by counsel for the movant that takes the situation 4 out of the normative case law that guides the Court. Just 5 because the secured claim happens to be a show stopper, from 6 the perspective of the debtors in Southern California doesn't 7 mean that the secured claim is not entitled to all of the 8 protections that Section 362 provide.

9 The motion, in the form that it was presented which 10 has been heard on an expedited schedule at the request of the 11 movant, seeks broad relief that is not currently focused on use 12 of cash collateral of DIP lending, although both of those 13 issues are identified within the motion. The objections that 14 have been filed by the debtor and by the creditors' committee 15 to the relief sought are fundamentally sound in noting that the 16 relief is broad and unspecified would expose the Lehman estate 17 to a parade of horrors and is not presently warranted on the 18 current record.

19 As a matter of law, counsel for the movant declined 20 the Court's invitation to focus on the Sonax factors and 21 instead focused on an equitable argument, that it's simply 22 unfair to these debtors, in their California cases, to be 23 subjected to what amounts to a blocking position of a secured 24 creditor who happens to be benefitted by the automatic stay.
25 That's just the way it is. And that's the way it will remain

1     until such time as one of the following things occurs. Either 2     the SunCal parties move again with a targeted motion focused on 3     particular relief for cause shown or the parties, following 4     discussions, agree by stipulation to limited relief from the 5     automatic stay. Or the parties, through discussions, reach 6     agreement concerning the terms and conditions of financing that 7     may be afforded by Lehman related entities.

8             Mr. Gottfried is wrong when he suggests, in his final 9     argument, that if Lehman were the lender that the same problem 10    would exist. Of course it wouldn't exist. If Lehman were the 11    lender it would be a consensual arrangement. It would include 12    consensual stay relief and the terms and conditions would no 13    doubt be perfectly acceptable to Lehman because Lehman was 14    offering the deal.

15            To the extent that the only lending which is 16    available in California is lending which comes on a priming 17    basis, a priming fight in the current environment is something 18    to be avoided. I encourage the parties, however, to talk to 19    each other and to talk constructively with each other about 20    ways to solve the financing aspect of this problem. That 21    doesn't mean that they're going to reach agreement nor does it 22    mean that that's the end of the problems that the SunCal
23    entities are exposed to in their bankruptcy cases. But let's 24    recognize reality, if Lehman entities hold secured claims of 25    2.3 billion dollars somebody in charge at the SunCal companies

1 needs to be speaking with, dealing with, respecting the rights 2 of the Lehman entities because they're not going to get out of 3 bankruptcy without passing through Lehman. Lehman's right will 4 be protected in this court except for cause shown, which hasn't 5 been shown today. Motion denied without prejudice.

6 MR. MILLER: Thank you.

7 THE COURT: And I'll accept an order that so holds.

8 MR. MILLER: Thank you, Your Honor. If I might, 9 Your Honor, I would go to the adjourned matters. There are, in 10 addition to the three matters which we put over from the early 11 calendar.

12 THE COURT: Before you go to the adjourned matters, I 13 noticed that this happened during the last omnibus hearing on 14 November 5, and there's no problem with it if you want to do 15 it, but you went through the list and we had a review of 16 everything that was adjourned, which took some time.

17 MR. MILLER: I'm not proposing to do that,
18 Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: I'm proposing you don't do that.

20 MR. MILLER: I was just going to say, Your Honor, 21 there are nineteen matters. Fourteen are being adjourned to 22 December 3, four to December 16, two to January 14 and one to 23 February 11th.

24 THE COURT: I accept that summary.

25 MR. MILLER: I would just point out, Your Honor, at

1 the rate that we are receiving objections to various matters on 2 the December 3 calendar; it looks like it's going to be a very 3 long, extensive calendar. So I'm just alerting the Court.

4 The one other matter, Your Honor, is the adversary 5 proceeding. And I think Your Honor's familiar with that. The 6 pre-trial conference as put over, I think, to December 16th or 7 something like that Your Honor. So that's fine and I will now 8 turn the podium over to the LBI trustee, Your Honor.

9 THE COURT: Thank you very much, Mr. Miller.

10 MR. KOBAK: Good afternoon, Your Honor. James Kobak, 11 Hughes Hubbard & Reed for Mr. Giddens, the Lehman Brothers, 12 Inc. trustee.

13 Your Honor, if you wish I'm prepared to give a brief 14 status report, I hope a little bit briefer than Mr. Miller's, 15 just to bring you up to date on progress.

16 THE COURT: I'd be interested in hearing it.

17 MR. KOBAK: And then Mr. Wiltenburg will handle our 18 actual calendar for today.

19 I want to focus, as I have in the past, on the return 20 of customer property because that's really what our proceeding 21 is all about. Unlike some of the other proceedings that you've 22 heard about today, our effort has been to get property to 23 customers and I don't mean any criticism of anybody else it's 24 just that a SIPC proceeding has a different focus and SIPC, 25 particularly in this case, has really emphasized that this

1       should be our goal.

2               As I've reported, we've transferred approximately 3       135,000 accounts with approximately 140 billion dollars worth
4       of property to Barclays and to Neuberger Berman. That process, 5       I just want to make clear to everybody, that transferring these 6       accounts isn't quite as simple as pressing a button, 7       particularly when it comes to moving the attendant property.
8       And that's a process that's continuing. We've made a lot of 9       progress, probably ninety-eight or ninety-nine percent of the 10      property has been moved by now. But we still remain to do 11      that. We have disputes, sometimes, with Barclays or with 12      people who are holding our collateral. There are a lot of 13      books and records to reconcile and so forth. So it's still an 14      extensive process. It involves a number of LBI people some of 15      whom are now ring fenced for us by Barclays. It also 16      increasingly involves people from Deloitte. SIPC oversees the 17      process and when there are questions about whether funds can 18      come out of the 15(c)(3) account or so forth, the SEC will also 19      be involved.

20             I reported last time that we had begun, under our 21      protocol of dealing with the prime brokerage accounts, that 22      attracts a lot of attention so I wanted to spend a few minutes 23      on that today. The process that we established is not a 24      traditional SIPC claims process, although it's similar to that.
25      But the idea was designed a process so that people could get

1 identifiable property back as quickly as possible when it's 2 available to be returned to them.

3 The prime brokers can avail themselves of this 4 process or if they don't like the results they're always free
5 to file a claim in the SIPC proceeding.

6 We have, approximately, 250 relationships which 7 covers something like 750 accounts; most of the prime 8 brokerages have several accounts associated with them. It's a 9 very complicated procedure because there are a lot of 10 transactions in these accounts. In some of the equity accounts
11 there are margin accounts. Some of the accounts have repos 12 where there may be funds owing to Lehman that may have to be 13 netted out against what they can claim. We have to look, in 14 some cases property was collateralized or other Lehman 15 entities, particularly LBIE, has rights or claims to some of 16 the property involved. So we have to research all of that.

17 Early on we had some difficulties getting access to 18 the screens that were maintained by third parties, where some 19 of these accounts were located. We've been able to resolve 20 those questions, most of the time, although I think as Mr.
21 Miller was alluding to, there's still problems with somebody's 22 password not being recognized or the like. And it can be a 23 somewhat cumbersome process.

24 Our process is, originally most of this work was 25 done, again, by Legacy LBI employees. We've tried to move away

1 from that although there's still a number of them that we rely 2 on that have been ring fenced. And we've increasingly brought 3 Deloitte into the process. On this process alone we know have 4 twenty-five Deloitte people who look at these accounts and do
5 the reconciliation and check the work and so forth. Overall 6 we're now up to 135 Deloitte employees that help us with 7 various aspects of the liquidation.

8 In addition to our people and the former Lehman 9 people and the Deloitte people, SIPC has made available several 10 staff members who are here on a weekly basis, rotating basis, 11 in New York. And they supervise the work that's done. The SEC 12 is also involved. They don't really bless or approve the 13 process necessarily but when there are questions, again, about 14 the 15(c)(3) account or something like that, they're available 15 and they're aware of the process.

16 So it's a somewhat lengthy and arduous process, 17 probably more so than we envisioned when we got started at it.
18 There are just a lot of questions to be resolved sometimes in 19 these accounts.

20 When we've reached our determination of what we think 21 is properly owing to the customer as the appropriate 22 disposition of the account, there's then a -- and often this 23 actually starts before the work is completely finished, but 24 there's a back and forth communication with the account 25 involved to make sure that they agree and to work out any

1 problems with disposition. So that can sometimes take a little 2 bit of time.

3 To date we've basically satisfied, and we can't in 4 all cases completely satisfy the claim because, as I've said, 5 there may be some property that LBIE or some other entity has 6 claims to or there may be some amounts that are still owing to 7 Lehman. But we have substantially completed the process with 8 respect to about 120 of these 250 relationships. Currently we 9 have about twenty that are with the customer involved for the 10 customer's review. So we're just waiting, really, for the 11 customer to get back to us.

12 There are around ten cases where, for various reasons
13 including sometimes when you net everything out the customer 14 owes us money and so they don't really want to submit to this 15 process. So there are another ten of those. And there are 16 about a hundred that we're still working on, almost all of 17 which have now been completed or substantially been completed 18 by Deloitte and in many cases reviewed by SIPC and looked at by 19 the SEC as well.

20 So again, it will take some time. It'll take several 21 weeks, I think, to complete that process but we have made a lot 22 of progress. But I just did want some of the creditors, 23 customers in the audience, to understand that this is not a 24 simple procedure, you don't just get a piece of paper and say 25 okay, we owe you this and send it out. There's a lot of work

1 and reconciliation that goes into this.

2 When we finish that process, as Your Honor knows, you
3 approved a couple of weeks ago our claims forms and our claims 4 process. We had intended that those be mailed out by December 5 1st. Our claims people, EPIC, actually say they may be able to 6 commence that mailing a little bit early, perhaps by 7 Thanksgiving. So that won't really affect the bar date that 8 customers have but it will give them a little more time to deal 9 with the forms.

10 We've set up a process for dealing with those claims.
11 A combination of EPIC people, a large number of Deloitte people 12 will be reviewing them in the first instance.

13 As I've said last time, we mailed out, I think it's 14 830,000 customer claim forms and another 100,000 proof of 15 claims for general creditors. No one has any experience in a 16 liquidation of this size and this nature, I don't think, as to 17 how many claims we're likely to receive. Many accounts have 18 been transferred out so one would think that those people would 19 not have claims, in most cases, although there might be some.
20 But we do anticipate we will probably get a lot of 21 communications from people who might be somewhat confused by 22 the process.

23 And we do have a number of accounts remaining and we 24 probably will have a number of prime brokerage and other 25 customers who will have some disputes, if not about the way

1     their claims were handled at least about some property that 2     couldn't be returned to them. We are anticipating that there 3     will be people with repos and certain kinds of derivatives that 4     probably do not have what we consider customer claims, or at 5     least that's our initial analysis, and they may well dispute 6     that. Fortunately or unfortunately for Your Honor, I think 7     there'll be some very interesting issues that will be coming 8     before the Court.

9             And we think that the claims process, we'll try to do 10    it as expeditiously as we can, but if we have the volume of 11    correspondence and communications that we fear that we may 12    have, I think it's going to be a somewhat lengthy process 13    before we get to the end of it.

14            At this point we have a fairly small internal staff.
15    We are trying to beef that up selectively. But to a large 16    extent we're relying on Deloitte, at this point. You're about 17    to hear a motion to appoint Norton Rose as counsel, so they 18    will be playing a role with respect to monitoring some of the 19    activities in LBIE particularly. They've also been helpful 20    with some asset sales and questions that have arisen, really 21    all around the world, particularly in Asia with some of the 22    other proceedings that are pending.

23            We are not quite as far along as some of the other 24    entities in working out transition service agreements; we have 25    been discussing that with Barclays. They have identified and

1 we've discussed with them a number of ring fence people. We 2 haven't completely determined what the terms are but we are 3 making good progress on that. I suspect that to some extent we 4 will have a similar agreement, perhaps, with LBHI and Alvarez.
5 But even in the absence of such an agreement we have been 6 working cooperatively with them.

7 Your Honor heard about protocols for the 8 international proceedings and we have been in discussions about 9 that. I have to say that I think that just because of the 10 nature of our proceeding, that we are a bankruptcy liquidation 11 we're not a reorganization. We have had a big focus on getting 12 property returned. That to some extent our interest and the 13 interest of the others diverge a little bit with respect to 14 some aspects of the protocol. But having said that, we are 15 very anxious to enter something that would deal with sharing of 16 basic information and to the extent possible, dealing with 17 claims on a cross border basis because we certainly have a lot 18 of claimants who also had or think they had property at LBIE.
19 And I know LBIE has the same situation with respect to some of 20 their claimants. So we are all spending a lot of time doing 21 drafts of protocols and I think we're making progress. It's 22 not an easy process because this is a pretty unprecedented 23 situation.

24 One final thing I want to focus on is the examination 25 of the debtor, under Section 78 (FFF-1)(d) and particularly

1        subparagraph 2, a SIPC trustee has a specific power and duty to 2        conduct an examination of the debtor, to take depositions, to 3        report to the Court and the creditors on what he's found. And 4        we take that responsibility very serious. We think that 5        shortly it will be time to embark on that and we do intend to 6        embark on it. We will be issuing a report, both as to some of 7        the causes of the liquidation and to causes of action and other 8        things that we discover during the process. And that will also 9        involve things like inter-company receivables and so forth.

10                So I just wanted Your Honor to know that we do have 11                that responsibility. We do intend to discharge it and I think 12                we will begin discharging it as soon as we can get a little 13                further along on the process of returning customer property.;

14                THE COURT: Thank you for that report.

15                MR. KOBAK: Thank you, Your Honor.

16                (Pause)

17                MR. WILTENBURG: Good afternoon, Your Honor.

18        David Wiltenburg, Hughes Hubbard & Reed representing James W.
19        Giddens as trustee for the liquidation of Lehman Brothers, Inc.

20                Your Honor, I believe there are three matters on the 21        calendar that require discussion. Two are uncontested motion 22        sand the third is a 2004 application that is contested.

23                The first is the trustee's motion for a final order 24        authorizing and approving expedited procedures for the sale or 25        abandonment of Lehman Brothers, Inc.'s de minimis assets.

1 THE COURT: This is the one we talked about last 2 time?

3 MR. WILTENBURG: Indeed, Your Honor. And as the 4 Court may recall we were before the Court on October 8th on an 5 emergency basis due to an exigent circumstance that existed 6 with respect to property located in Beijing, China. That 7 situation was addressed under the interim order that was 8 entered at that time. And for purposes of consideration of a 9 final order, at the Court's request, we've provided some 10 additional information, sketching on a non-exclusive basis, 11 categories of assets that would be potentially subject to the 12 abandonment or sale procedures that are described. With some 13 indication of the ranges of book values, at least, that are 14 attached to these categories. And this, again, is based on the 15 activities of Deloitte in drilling down and getting behind 16 balance sheet items to understand assets.

17 Your Honor, we have received some comments,
18 originally for purposes of the October hearing we had a request 19 by the official creditors' committee of the Lehman Brothers
20 Holdings case to be included as a notice party, and they are so 21 included in the proposed final order.

22 More recently we've had a request by the asset
23 purchaser, Barclays Capital, to be included as a notice party 24 and the reason for that is the potential for ambiguity or 25 question vis-a-vis particular assets as to whether they are

1 purchased assets within the meaning of the contractual 2 documentations or excluded assets. And it would be good to 3 understand those issues if there are any, as a particular item 4 is proposed to be sold or abandoned. So that comment too has 5 been taken into account in the proposed final order.

6 THE COURT: Are those the only changes?

7 MR. WILTENBURG: Yes, Your Honor.

8 THE COURT: There are no objections to this and 9 relatively speaking this is ministerial and I'm prepared to 10 approve it. I would note, however, that the supplemental 11 declaration only answered some of the questions that I had 12 posed during the emergency hearing that you reference in your 13 remarks. One of the things that I was interested in knowing 14 was how the trustee determined what was de minimis, the break 15 points in terms of numbers, not just the categories of assets.
16 But this thing has gone for such a long time without being 17 adjudicated and no one seems to care about except me. So I 18 think I'll just approve it and assume that the noticed parties, 19 to the extent there are any issues, will take care of what 20 needs to be taken care of when something's being sold for too 21 little.

22 MR. WILTENBURG: Thank you, Your Honor.

23 THE COURT: Ms. Granfield wishes to speak.

24 MS. GRANFIELD: Yes, Your Honor. Thank you. Lindsee
25 Granfield, Cleary, Gottlieb, Steen & Hamilton, LLP, on behalf

1 of Barclays Capital. Mr. Wiltenburg is quite correct that we 2 resolved any issue in terms of this order for today. But one 3 thing I did want to point out, because partly our interest got 4 very much piqued, actually, by the declaration that 5 Mr. Wiltenburg filed, because we looked at it, and 6 unfortunately we said hey, that's our property. And so this 7 has been dealt with for today in terms of Barclays being a 8 noticed party and, in fact, for a certain amount of time, for 9 this order, getting notice of everything that's proposed.

10 The order does provide that it's without prejudice to 11 Barclays' asking in January that that period of time to get 12 notice of everything continue at least for a while. And we're 13 obviously not there yet, knowing which way we'll go on that or 14 whether we'll think that's necessary. But we do very much have 15 an interest in making sure that Barclays' purchase assets are 16 Barclays' purchase assets, but not unduly causing dispute or 17 just working things out if there are issues when we see these 18 notices.

19 THE COURT: Well, maybe you'll find something on the 20 shopping list you'll want to buy.

21 MS. GRANFIELD: That could happen too.

22 MR. WILTENBURG: Thank you, Your Honor. I think the 23 next item is the trustee's application to retain and employ 24 Norton Rose, LLP as U.K. counsel, nunc pro tunc, to October 27, 25 2008. As the Court is aware, the liquidation proceedings or

1 administration of Lehman Brothers Europe is proceeding in 2 London under the auspices of court-appointed liquidators. And 3 the relationships between LBI and LBIE, as it's called, are 4 complex and substantial, and have the potential to have 5 material effects, both on the estates of the entities involved 6 and interest holders in those estates. And accordingly, the 7 trustee believes it's prudent to have representation present in 8 connection with the proceedings in London, and has selected 9 Norton Rose as particularly good candidate to be the trustee's 10 representative in that forum.

11 Your Honor, the application is supported by a 12 declaration of disinterestedness executed by Mr. Radford 13 Goodman, who's a partner in Norton Rose, that we believe meets 14 the required standard of disinterestedness under SIPA. We've 15 received no opposition to the application and would request 16 that it be approved.

17 THE COURT: I'm prepared to approve it in the absence 18 of objection. If there's no objection, it's approved.

19 MR. WILTENBURG: Finally, Your Honor, there is the 20 motion for a Rule 2004 examination that's being presented by 21 parties identified as the DCP parties, and I will step aside to 22 let them present.

24 MR. MORRIS: Good afternoon, Your Honor. I'm Michael 25 Morris of Hennigan, Bennett & Dorman. We represent what we

1 refer to as the DCP parties. These are participants in and 2 beneficiaries of various -- or at least two -- deferred 3 compensation programs that were in place at Lehman for many, 4 many years. Some of these participants left the employ of 5 Lehman quite some time ago, some were more recent. We 6 initially were contacted by a group of eight individuals that 7 we currently represent who had been in a process of organizing 8 participants and beneficiaries of these deferred compensation 9 programs, and through the efforts of these eight individuals, 10 they've contacted, as it now stands, approximately 260 11 additional people who are participants in these programs, and 12 are working to find others. But they do not know, nor do they 13 have possession of a list that would have the universe of 14 people that are beneficiaries of and participants in these 15 programs.

16 THE COURT: Do you know how large the potential 17 universe is?

18 MR. MORRIS: We believe, although we can't be certain 19 because we don't have a list, but we believe it's approximately 20 500 people. And we believe that the neighborhood of the claims 21 is in the range of approximately 500 million. And that is, of 22 course, uncertain at this point, because we don't have the 23 list.

24 THE COURT: Why is this a group that needs to be 25 jointly represented by the same group of lawyers?

1 MR. MORRIS: Well, there's nothing inherent that says
2 they have to be jointly represented.

3 THE COURT: No, I'm just wondering what the purpose
4 is of organizing a group like this and what your firm's purpose
5 is in seeking the names so that you can expand your client
6 list?

7 MR. MORRIS: The request to expand -- it's not so
8 much to expand the firm's client list. There was an effort --

9 THE COURT: I didn't mean it the way it sounded.

10 MR. MORRIS: I understand, Your Honor. It was an 11 effort by these individuals to be sure that they had contacted 12 the universe of people who would have an interest, recognizing 13 that any actions that may be taken, any steps that may be 14 taken, would: a) be of interest to other people who had 15 similarly situated claims, and conceivably could affect what 16 would happen to those claims in the context of the case, 17 depending on what happens and what actions might be taken.

18 In addition, in terms of sharing of information, the 19 clients that we represent have benefited, they think, 20 substantially and significantly for being able to talk to the 21 people that they have located thus far, all of whom have 22 different pieces of information at times relative to their 23 claims. They have different ideas as to the way in which 24 claims might be protected, what the rights of the claims might 25 be. And this provides a beneficial and fertile source for the

1 group as a whole in directing its counsel as to what actions it 2 should pursue, where it should direct its efforts, and what 3 would be of interest to the broadest possible group.

4 THE COURT: I noticed your reference in the papers, 5 and I may have misunderstood this, that this is a program that 6 was insurance-based, at least in part.

7 MR. MORRIS: That's our understanding, yes.

8 THE COURT: And what I'm wondering is, if there's an 9 insurance product that is at the bottom of this, why isn't 10 there an insurance company that has a list of its 11 policyholders?

12 MR. MORRIS: It is our understanding, although we 13 don't have great information with respect to this, as yet, and 14 it's one of the areas in which we would like to get better 15 information, but it's my understanding that there's not a 16 single insurance company that has issued the policies that are 17 related to this plan. There are several. And because this 18 program extended over many, many years, it is entirely possible 19 that policies were issued at various times depending upon what 20 corporate family Lehman was in at the time, the individuals at 21 the time, and the availability of the products. So we don't 22 know of a central place. We don't even know, in many cases, 23 which insurance companies might or might not be involved. So 24 there's no central location that we're aware of that we could 25 go to and obtain such a list or such information.

1 THE COURT: But surely your existing clients must 2 have some record of the insurance products that were part of 3 the program.

4 MR. MORRIS: I expect that some do. But we don't 5 believe it's in any way a complete or reliable --

6 THE COURT: Okay.

7 MR. MORRIS: -- list of information. The simple fact 8 is, the trustee has, at his fingertips, a list that all we are 9 asking for is the names and addresses of these individuals, so 10 we can send a communication. If they do not wish to 11 participate, that's fine. It would be at an end. The 12 communication would come from this group which we refer to as 13 the steering committee, not necessarily a formal committee, but 14 they are all our clients at this time. It would come from 15 them. And it would be a simple communication to facilitate 16 this organizational process.

17 We frankly are surprised the trustee has taken the 18 approach of opposing this. His basis for opposing it, we find 19 puzzling at best. We think this is clearly within the scope of 20 Rule 2004. It clearly affects the administration of this case.
21 This also concerns the liabilities of the debtor. But more 22 importantly, it affects how this case will be administered and 23 the ability of this large group of individual creditors to have 24 their interest adequately represented in the context of the 25 case.

1           THE COURT: Now, I'm hearing you on that and I'm 2 sympathetic to the argument you're making about how this 3 affects the administration. But I don't quite understand how 4 it does. And that's partly because I don't think I understand 5 what it is that this group intends to do, what claims it has, 6 and whether or not these are claims that would simply be 7 routinely handled in the ordinary course of the SIPA 8 proceeding, without the need for a law firm such as yours to 9 become involved, or whether or not these are more extraordinary 10 in nature and claims that might be more creatively articulated, 11 because your firm has a reputation for doing such things. So 12 it's hard for me to imagine that this is just ministerial.
13 What's going on?

14           MR. MORRIS: Well, Your Honor, the truth is, at this 15 stage of the proceedings, we're not sure that we have a sense 16 of the universe of what might be going on. But there are a 17 number of issues that we think that would be important to this 18 group. Included among those issues are, for example, the very 19 large amount of intercompany claims that were shown on the 20 books of LBI prior to the filing of this Chapter 11 case, and 21 the relative ranking and treatment of those intercompany claims 22 vis-a-vis general creditors of the estate, such as is 23 represented by this group. That could end up being a very 24 crucial and critical issue in this case, and could dramatically 25 affect the distributions that may be made to unsecured

1 creditors and to the beneficiaries of these deferred
2 compensation plans.

3 And that's an interest that creditors need to be very 4 aware of, and this group in particular believes that it needs
5 to be very aware of. There are other issues that may come 6 before the Court. We note -- and before I leave the subject of 7 intercompany claims -- that recently there's been at least some 8 attention to that. There has been discussion today about the 9 merits and the size and the importance of intercompany claims.
10 There was a provision inserted into a recent order that deals 11 in some respect with intercompany claims, although candidly, we 12 don't really understand either the purpose or intent of that 13 paragraph as yet. But this could form a very significant issue 14 for creditors of these estates and these beneficiaries in 15 particular.

16 THE COURT: Is it your position that the group you're 17 trying to assemble has claims that are particular to that group 18 because of the deferred compensation aspects of it, or are 19 these claims, claims that would be typical of a broader class 20 of claimants?

21 MR. MORRIS: I actually think it's both. In some 22 respects, to the extent that they are general creditors, they 23 share characteristics with other general creditors of this 24 estate. However, as you noted earlier, these deferred 25 compensation plans were put in place with insurance features

1 and insurance policies.

2 THE COURT: Who owns those policies?

3 MR. MORRIS: That is a very significant issue. But I 4 think it will have to be addressed in the context of these 5 cases, and I think that that is a particular issue where the 6 interest of these claimants may diverge from other creditors of 7 these estates. There are also issues relative to -- just as an 8 example, even independent of the issue of ownership, which 9 again, we think may be a very key and important issue in the 10 context of these cases, there's also the issue that a number of 11 the people that might make up this group are, for example, old 12 enough that they would be beyond the age where they could 13 obtain an insurance rating and insurance on their own, and 14 might therefore have -- these are insurance policies on their 15 lives.

16 They might have a direct interest in those policies, 17 and the trustee's intentions with respect to those policies, 18 and what happens with those policies. So that area in 19 particular is an area in which the interests of these creditors 20 may well diverge from those of other creditors.

21 There are other issues relative to the history of 22 this particular corporate entity. It has bounced around. It 23 has had different corporate families and different parents.
24 And there may be relative rights that arise by reason of the 25 way in which those combinations and separations occurred.

1 Truthfully, we don't have any detail on this as yet. It's 2 simply an area of inquiry. So there are certainly going to be 3 some areas in which these creditors would share interest along 4 with other general creditors, but there are a number of areas
5 where they could have particular interests that are divergent 6 and different from other creditors of these estates.

7 THE COURT: Thank you, very much.

8 MR. MORRIS: The other aspect that runs through the 9 trustee's opposition to turning over this list is one of 10 confidentiality. And I would like to briefly address that, 11 because I don't think it requires much more than a brief
12 address. It is undoubtedly true that the debtor in this case, 13 and the trustee as successor to the debtor, has confidential
14 information with respect to those people. We are not asking 15 for that information. We do not want any confidential 16 information from the personnel files of these individuals.
17 We're looking only for the names and addresses of creditors of 18 this estate.

19 We do not believe, under any rationale, simple names 20 and addresses of creditors could be considered to be 21 confidential. Indeed, in most cases that information is 22 publicly disclosed at the outset of the case, and it's only the 23 peculiarities of this case that make it not so. We don't think 24 confidentiality is a valid reason to deny this request. And 25 the third reason advanced by the trustee for the denial of the

1 request is the notion that we are somehow creating false 2 expectations of some kind on behalf of these participants. We 3 believe that that is unfounded. There's no basis on which the 4 trustee should or could have reason to harbor those suspicions, 5 and we believe it doesn't form a basis for the denial of the 6 motion.

7 THE COURT: Is that because there are no expectations 8 whatsoever concerning this representation? What are the 9 expectations?

10 MR. MORRIS: I don't know.

11 THE COURT: Okay.

12 MR. MORRIS: And each individual probably has 13 different expectations. But it will not be the role or the 14 result of counsel of creating any expectations that we believe 15 are in any respect false in the minds of our clients. Your 16 Honor, we think that it's a simple request. It can be complied 17 with a very minimum of effort on behalf of the trustee, costing 18 virtually no money. The list we ask for could be delivered 19 before I could return to my office. We think that the motion 20 should be approved.

21 THE COURT: How far away is your office?

22 MR. MORRIS: Even if it were down the block, it could 23 be delivered faster than that.

25 MR. MORRIS: Thank you, Your Honor.

1 THE COURT: I'll hear from the trustee now.

2 MR. WILTENBURG: Your Honor, David Wiltenburg, 3 Hughes, Hubbard & Reed, representing the trustee. Your Honor, 4 I think omitted from counsel's discussion of the basis for the 5 trustee's opposition was really the central item, and I'll 6 comment on some of the practical and factual aspects of it as 7 well. But basically, it is that there are some things that 8 Rule 2004 is about and is meant to do, and some things that 9 it's not meant to do. And I think that really comes out of the 10 language of the rule itself which provides that the scope of 11 the examination may relate "only to the acts, conduct or 12 property or to the liabilities and financial condition of the 13 debtor or to any matter which may affect the administration of 14 the debtor's estate."

15 The word "only" there has to have meaning, and I 16 think in order to respect that meaning, it's not possible to 17 grant really expansive understanding to the enumerated matters
18 there. It cuts back against the intent of the specification --

19 THE COURT: But he's not dealing with that, because 20 "only" appears in the sentence that precedes: "only to acts, 21 conduct or property or to the liabilities and financial 22 condition of the debtor or to any matter which may affect the 23 administration of the debtor's estate or to the debtor's right 24 to a discharge." I think regrettably for your argument, the 25 word "only" appears only in one place and it's set off by ors,

1 suggesting to a fair reader that the "only" applies to the 2 first part of that, to the "only to the acts, conduct, or 3 property." Because it then picks up "or to the liabilities".
4 So I'm just quibbling with you --

5 MR. WILTENBURG: Okay.

6 THE COURT: -- on the strength of that argument.

7 MR. WILTENBURG: Well --

8 THE COURT: I'm finding that lacking.

9 MR. WILTENBURG: -- Your Honor, in support of that, 10 we cited cases at page 3 of our memorandum of law. And those 11 are cases that emphasize the limited qualities of 2004.

12 THE COURT: There are very few cases that actually 13 emphasize the limited nature of the power of 2004.

14 MR. WILTENBURG: Well, but --

15 THE COURT: It's nice that you found some.

16 MR. WILTENBURG: Okay, Your Honor. Would it be fair 17 to say, could we all agree, that this request that is being 18 made here for the purpose of soliciting creditors, is not 19 within the heartland of what's traditionally been thought of as 20 Rule 2004, and indeed, that there is no authority supporting 21 the idea that a list of creditors for purposes of making 22 solicitations is within the scope of Rule 2004 examination?

23 Your Honor, I think, looking at the practical side, 24 one question here might be is it really a good idea? I mean 25 the effect of an order granting this application would be that

1       apparently over 500 persons will receive solicitations from 2       counsel. Near as we can figure, over eighty percent of those 3       persons have rights that are subordinated to the rights of 4       other creditors by contract.

5               Indeed, all of these people are going to be receiving 6       proofs of claim within the next couple of weeks. And as that 7       process is going forward, each of them will probably be 8       receiving solicitations as well. It may well appear to them 9       that that solicitation is kind of part of the claims process, 10      maybe even that it's endorsed by the trustee or even the Court.

11             I suppose if the application is granted it would be 12      possible to say to a recipient of the solicitation that the 13      Court has entered an order granting access to your name for the 14      purpose of that solicitation. Most of these parties are going 15      to be -- the vast majority, are going to be subordinated by 16      contract. And that contract provides that their rights are 17      subordinate to all present and future creditors of the 18      applicable Lehman entity. Will it be a good idea? I suppose 19      it would be up to each claimant to seek advice on the question, 20      will it be a good idea to invest legal fees in the protection 21      of a subordinated claim in this case.

22             THE COURT: Well, that's not what this hearing is 23      about. This hearing is about whether or not the request for 24      those names fits within the ambit of 2004. And one of the 25      questions that I have. People generally pick their battles and

1 decide what's worth fighting about. And it's obvious that you
2 and your client and others involved in the SIPA case on behalf
3 of the trustee have decided that this is a time to draw a line 4 in the sand with respect to a request that under ordinary 5 circumstances might have just been granted and never got to 6 this level. Say okay, here are the names. Why has this become 7 from the perspective of the trustee such a big deal.

8 MR. WILTENBURG: Your Honor, we didn't feel 9 comfortable, first of all, just releasing the names without 10 guidance from the Court, without discussion of kind of the 11 unusual quality of that. It might be considered, in this 12 connection, what will happen when another party comes forward
13 saying, well, I would like to know the names of all SWAPS
14 participants or I would like to know the names of all parties
15 having foreign exchange based claims, or I would like to know 16 the names of all creditors in this category or that category
17 going forward. I think it supposes a lot to suppose that each 18 one of those requests would be appropriate, whether in terms of 19 the privacy or considerations that would be personal to 20 creditors, or from the point of view of the policy behind it 21 and the potential for a precedent.

22 THE COURT: Well, let me understand something which 23 really goes to the essential difference between the SIPA
24 proceeding and the Chapter 11 case. We had some argument 25 earlier today about the schedules and statement of financial

1       affairs and when those were going to be filed. And we're 2       currently looking at a mid-January date for filing those in the 3       LBHI case. Ordinarily the names of creditors in Chapter 11 4       cases are in the public domain. They're known because they're 5       scheduled or they're known because there's a repository of 6       proofs of claim in which parties identify themselves. There's 7       no expectation of confidentiality as to that list.

8               MR. WILTENBURG: Certainly a creditor who files a 9       proof of claim has no expectation of confidentiality.

10              THE COURT: And there's none with respect to the 11       fishbowl of bankruptcy altogether, because there is a duty on 12       the part of the estate, at least in a Chapter 11 setting, to 13       reveal who's out there with claims, by class, with indications 14       as to whether or not there may even be a dispute with respect 15       to those claims. So what happens in the SIPA case? Is there 16       an ability for a group such as the one represented by movant's 17       counsel to access by category that list?

18              MR. WILTENBURG: Your Honor, that categorization 19       process will not come to pass under the SIPA regime, and the 20       reason is that there is a provision in the statute that 21       requires identification from the books and records of the 22       debtor, the entire body of persons who may potentially have 23       claims and the mailing of claim forms to those persons. And 24       that is the process that was under discussion two weeks ago as 25       we talked about the claims process and the claims forms that

1 will be mailed out and published. That body of persons is 2 several hundred thousand, and the process of mailing to them is 3 going forward and hopefully to be completed by December 1st.

4 THE COURT: I understand, but that's not what I was 5 asking. I wasn't asking about the mailing that's going on. I
6 was asking about the disclosure to the world in an accessible 7 form of the names of the parties who, in fact, have claims. Is 8 there such a vehicle? There would be if this were a Chapter 11 9 case. I'm simply asking an incredibly nanve question which 10 calls for a very simple answer. And if the answer is well, 11 there's no such vehicle, I think it's meaningful to the pending
12 motion.

13 MR. WILTENBURG: Well, Your Honor, under I believe 14 it's Rule 1007 --

15 THE COURT: I know that rule.

16 MR. WILTENBURG: -- there is provision for the filing 17 of schedules by a debtor and there is no requirement on a 18 trustee to file such schedules.

19 THE COURT: Well, whether there's a requirement or 20 not, do you have any plan to do so?

21 MR. WILTENBURG: Your Honor, I think when the 22 investigation that Mr. Kobak referred to is complete, there 23 will be an understanding of the creditor body. Whether it 24 comes in the form of listings of hundreds of thousands of 25 creditors who have claims or potential claims, I don't know

1       that.

2               THE COURT:   Okay.   I'm going to assume that that 3       means probably not.   Do I assume correctly?

4               MR. WILTENBURG:   Your Honor, I don't know otherwise.
5       I'm willing to assume that for purposes of this hearing that it 6       will not --

7               THE COURT:   Let's assume for purposes of this hearing 8       that it's your position on behalf of your client that there's 9       no obligation to file publicly accessible documents that are 10      equivalent to the schedules that would be filed in accordance 11      with Rule 1007.   Is that a fair assumption?

12              MR. WILTENBURG:   Yes, Your Honor.   I think that's the 13      case.

14              THE COURT:   Okay.

15              MR. WILTENBURG:   Your Honor, finally, it appears that 16      the Hennigan firm has already succeeded in contacting half or 17      more than half of the persons who it believes are in this 18      category.   That's a substantial percentage.   Now, the question 19      is whether contacting of the other half is going to be 20      basically ordered pursuant to Rule 2004.   As it now stands, 21      even the fact of this motion and the hearing we're having on 22      the record today, it's a matter of public record that such a 23      group exists with respect to these DCP claimants.   The names of 24      the counsel that may be contacted on the part of parties who 25      are interested enough to do so, that's a matter of public

1 record.

2 Your Honor, I would suggest that just as a matter of 3 exercise of discretion, which is of course what we're talking 4 about here, there's no real cause to change the position of the 5 parties to upset the playing field as it exists. Parties who 6 have seen what happens and have the interest in proceeding know 7 what to do without the imposition of a Rule 2004 examination.
8 Thank you, Your Honor.

9 THE COURT: Okay. Is there anything more on this?

10 MR. MORRIS: Very briefly. The Court's not ordering 11 any solicitation. The Court, if it grants our motion, is 12 simply delivering to us a list, and our clients will decide if 13 they wish to make such a solicitation. I expect they will.
14 The fact that our clients have been able to contact roughly 15 half of the potential body only argues for the release of the 16 list, because otherwise the group becomes simply haphazard in 17 terms of who learned about the organization of group pulling 18 others who don't know of it but might like to participate. And 19 without a vehicle to figure out what the universe is and 20 contact them, it leaves those people potentially who might 21 desire to join the group unable to do so. I won't belabor any 22 of the other points. We would ask that the motion be approved.
23 THE COURT: Okay. What I'm going to do with this is 24 a little bit unusual relative to how I've handled contested 25 matters in this case up to this point. I want to think about

1 this a little bit, and I'm going to take it under advisement
2 and we'll endeavor to rule on this at the next omnibus hearing 3 on the 3rd of December. I have my thoughts on this but I'd 4 like to also collect them and give some further consideration
5 to the 2004 scope that is really appropriate in the SIPA case 6 as it relates to other similarly situated parties who may be 7 seeking information of the same sort as is being requested by 8 the DCP class.

9 And after giving that some thought, I'll provide a 10 ruling at some point during the 12/3 hearing and simply ask 11 that it be carried as an agenda item in the SIPA case, with the 12 understanding that I'll say something that will be the 13 functional equivalent of a ruling, or I'll have written 14 something. But there will at least be a ruling.

15 MR. WILTENBURG: Thank you, Your Honor.

16 THE COURT: Is there anything more for today?

17 MR. MILLER: No, Your Honor. We're finished.

18 THE COURT: That's fine. We're adjourned.

19 IN UNISON: Thank you, Your Honor.
